Indian Abortion Law

NEW DELHI (AP) — India is putting into practice on Saturday an abortion law that stops just short of abortion-on-demand. The government insists it won't be used for birth control but hopes it will.

Roughly comparable to California's permissive law, the statute allows abortions at up to 20 weeks of pregnancy to protect the physical or mental health of the mother or to prevent the birth of a deformed child.

The mental health provision includes allowances for rape, "the pregnant woman's actual or reasonably foreseeable environment" and even for the failure of any birth control method if the woman is married.

Government officials say the new law is merely a health measure for Indian women, and that's how it was set up when they sent it through Parliament last August. But the men who work with the law consider it more than that.

"What country ever controlled its population with only standard birth control methods?" Asked Dr. Bhoshana Rao, an expert on the statute in the Ministry of Health and Family Planning.

"We realize that it will be a long time before it has a significant effect here, because our population problem is so massive. But we feel it will be a start."

The government hopes that a million women will use the law in its first year but hedges on predictions for the more distant future. And one million in India—said had 547 million people and a 2.45 per cent annual growth rate—is not many prevented births.

A foreign population consultant who works with the Indian family planning program, however, said it is significant.

"Abortion unquestionably will have an effect," he said.

"Even in the short term of the next four or five years, abortions should go up by one million a year."

"Giving early abortions is a hell of a lot simpler than delivering babies, and they deliver 20 million babies a year."

At the present growth rate, the Indian population will double in about 30 years. There are 100 million couples of child-bearing age, of whom only 12.8 per cent are considered by the government adequately protected by birth control measures.

India got into the family planning business 15 years ago, but only in the last six years has the program been pushed, with emphasis on sterilization.

N. Ireland Power Struggle

Protestants Show Split

BELFAST (AP) — Northern Ireland's Protestants, expected to be united in bitter opposition to Britain's rule, showed signs Friday of a split.

Three Protestant leaders, ex-Prime Minister Brian Faulkner, William Craig and the Rev. Ian Paisley, were involved in a struggle for control of the one million Protestants in Northern Ireland.

The split emerged when Craig's militant Ulster Vanguard Movement publicly criticized Faulkner and Paisley and announced plans for a large-scale civil disobedience campaign to disrupt British rule.

As the struggle brewed, the outlawed Irish Republican Army apparently eased off its guerrilla campaign after Thursday's widespread violence that left two persons dead.

In a full-page newspaper advertisement, Craig's group said Faulkner gate-crashed a big Vanguard rally at the provincial Parliament Tuesday after the assembly was suspended by Britain.

One of Craig's lieutenants, Capt. Austin Ardill, charged in a radio interview that Faulkner tried to upstage Craig at the rally in a bid for Protestant leadership.

Vanguard said its aim remains "an independent British Ulster" if British reforms, aimed at giving more power to the Catholic minority, endanger the Protestants' 51-year rule. Both Faulkner and Paisley oppose such a policy.

The movement said it plans to hold rent and local tax strikes throughout Northern Ireland—tactics the Protestants condemned when used by the Catholics. Faulkner also opposes this idea.

The three-way fight for control of the Protestant majority followed a week of growing bitterness against the British takeover in the province where 293 persons have died in nearly three years of sectarian strife.

Faulkner, 51, controls the Unionist party machine, though not all of its membership. The party is the Protestants' major political organization.

Craig, 49-year-old former provincial cabinet minister, commands Vanguard, which has demonstrated it can muster at least 50,000 men. The movement, which staged a crippling two-day strike this week protesting British rule, talks menacingly of arming its people.

Paisley, whose Democratic Unionist party may be losing some grass roots support, has the advantage of membership in the British Parliament, which now runs Northern Ireland. The once fiery leader has a growing reputation for moderation that has cost him some backing among angry Protestants.

He and Faulkner have demanded full integration of the province into the United Kingdom if the powers of the suspended Northern Ireland Parliament are not restored. Thus, they appear to be linking up as allies to defeat Craig.

Catholics prepared to hold parades throughout the province Sunday to mark the anniversary of the 1916 Easter Rebellion in Dublin that brought on Ireland's partition.

Despite an army ban on marches, authorities are expected to allow the parades so long as the Catholics do not march militarily.

But there were fears the marches might touch off clashes with the Protestants.

The British have flown in 600 more troops to handle any trouble that breaks out over Easter. This brought to 15,100 the number of British troops in Northern Ireland.

B-52 Crashes Into Orlando

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Seven Air Force crewmen were killed and at least eight civilians were injured Friday when a burning B-52 bomber nosedived into a residential neighborhood and sprayed homes with a sheet of blazing jet fuel.

The huge, eight-engine plane, which had reported a fire on board a few minutes before the crash, slammed to earth about 50 yards from the nearest house and a quarter mile from the McCoy Air Force Base runway where it was trying to land.

McCoy is just south of Orlando.

The eight civilians injured were identified as:

Nancy Robertson, 36, and three of her children, Robin, 15; Danny, 10, and Laura, 9, all treated for minor burns at Orange Memorial Hospital.

Anthony Ellington, 10, listed in critical condition; Billy Garland, 12; Donald Garland, 7 and Charles Garland, 5, all listed in satisfactory condition at Florida Hospital.

Orange County sheriff's deputies said two buildings were gutted and two others suffered heavy damage as the wreckage continued to burn fiercely more than an hour after the crash.

Evidence Reviewed By Harrisburg Jury

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A jury interrupted its second day of deliberations Friday for a review of key testimony by FBI informer Boyd Douglas during the federal conspiracy trial of the Rev. Philip Berigan and six other antiwar defendants.

At the panel's request, U.S. District Court Judge R. Dixon Herman reread his definition of conspiracy. Then he sent the jury back to deliberations, with the transcript of four days of Douglas' testimony which the jury had requested.

Included was Douglas' version of a purported plot to kidnap presidential aide Henry Kissinger, to blow up Washington's tunnel heating system and to vandalize draft boards in at least nine states.

The jury returned to the courtroom after lunch to ask if, even though more than one conspiracy existed, they were required to determine whether an overall conspiracy existed. Herman replied in the affirmative.

A second question was, in determining whether an overall conspiracy existed, "Is it necessary to determine that all seven defendants conspired to break the law in this particular indictment?" The judge said no.

The jurors also requested transcripts of the testimony of two additional prosecution witnesses—an assistant prison warden and Douglas' FBI contact agent.

Jury foreman Harold Sheets, a tax accountant, also asked for copies of closing arguments made earlier this week by prosecution and defense attorneys. Herman denied this request, since the summations did not constitute evidence.

The conspiracy case went to the jury of nine women and three men at 2:11 p.m. Thursday, as the 10th week of the trial drew near a close.

President Invokes Railway Labor Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — The threat of railroad strikes at midnight Friday was postponed for 60 days when President Nixon invoked emergency powers of the Railway Labor Act.

Nixon acted Friday after the National Mediation Board told him two separate rail labor disputes threatened to shut down substantial portions of the nation's rail service.

The President appointed emergency boards in a threatened strike by the AFL-CIO United Transportation Union against the Penn Central Railroad and in a nationwide wage and work rules dispute involving the AFL-CIO Sheet Metal Workers International Association.

This eliminates the possibility of a strike at midnight tonight," a spokesman at UTU headquarters in Cleveland said after Nixon acted.

The union had said a strike was inevitable if the Penn Central began carrying out its announced intention of laying off some 6,000 workers over several years.

Nixon's action freezes the current situation and prevents the Penn Central from laying off the workers as well as forbidding the union to strike.

Al H. Chesser, UTU president, said Nixon's order "puts undue pressure on the President when the parties could better handle their own business."

"We regret that the President was forced to resort to an emergency board when across-the-table bargaining could have solved the problem without creating another crisis," he said.

The Sheet Metal Workers dispute involves union demands for wage hikes of $1 more per hour for its 6,000 railroad members than the 42 per cent increases over 42 months accepted by more than 500,000 other rail workers.

The Sheet Metal Workers union is also seeking to eliminate a work rule that permits other shop craft union men to perform work in its jurisdiction.

The work rule was imposed by Congress along with a wage settlement two years ago to avert the threat of a nationwide strike.

The emergency boards in the two disputes have 30 days to report to Nixon on their findings, and another 30 days to attempt to mediate settlements.

The unions will be free to strike after the 90 days if no agreements are reached.

Democrat Candidates Observe Good Friday

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Sen. George S. McGovern gained the support of Wisconsin's senior Democratic senator as candidates cut back campaigning for Tuesday's presidential primary to observe Good Friday.

McGovern disclosed at a news conference here that Sen. William Proxmire, who had stated earlier he would not endorse a presidential candidate in the primary, had cast an absentee ballot for him. The senator's office in Washington confirmed the announcement.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie visited three wards, including one for drug addicts, at a Milwaukee Veterans Administration hospital and shook hands with the elderly at a nursing home. On a visit to a dozen homes in suburban Waukegan, the first woman he met said she plans to vote for President Nixon.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey

paid a morning visit to Madison where he told a labor breakfast his record is "second to none in the Democratic field." He received the endorsement of the Madison Building Trades Council.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, fresh from rousing rallies in Milwaukee and Racine, flew north for another gathering Friday night at Eau Claire.

McGovern, Humphrey and New York Mayor John V. Lindsay scheduled late afternoon appearances at a fish fry in a predominantly Polish-American part in Milwaukee's South Side.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson planned to campaign in the Jacksonville area of south-central Wisconsin.

Muskie, who is a Roman Catholic, attended Good Friday services at a Catholic church, while Humphrey, a Protestant, also attended Catholic services.

All the candidates plan busy campaign days Saturday and Monday, while setting aside Easter Sunday for their families.

Wisconsin's other Democratic senator, Gaylord Nelson, has remained neutral, as have Democratic Reps. Clement Zablocki and Les Aspin.

McGovern received the support earlier this week of Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, whose 2nd District includes McGovern's Madison stronghold, while Muskie has the support of Reps. Henry S. Reuss and David Obey.

McGovern told the news conference he expects absentee votes to be especially important because many students will be away for the Easter holidays. In Madison alone, some 7,000 absentee ballots have been cast.

He added that 25 per cent may be enough for any of the 12 Democrats on the crowded primary ballot to win the statewide race.

Federal Deficit Might Be Less Than Estimate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal deficit for the current fiscal year may prove to be $8 billion to $9 billion less than officially estimated, removing some of the stimulative impact of President Nixon's budget.

The Office of Management and Budget has yet to come up with a new estimate of the fiscal 1972 deficit, which was set at $38.8 billion in January, but officials said it is obvious that this figure is going to run much lower than that.

The principal reason is that new withholding tables that went in effect Jan. 16 are taking more money out of taxpayers' paychecks. And people are not adjusting their withholding exemptions to reduce the amount of money withheld. The Treasury Department said it is collecting about $1 billion per month more than anticipated in January. That alone would reduce the deficit by about $5 billion.

In addition, officials said, expenditures are turning out to be less than anticipated, although no figures were available immediately. The Navy, for instance, found that it was having difficulty spending as much money as it had planned between now and the end of the fiscal year on June 30.

There is one possible factor that could increase the deficit. A proposed revenue sharing bill which is close to clearing the House Ways and Means Committee would be retroactive to

Jan. 1, adding about $2.5 billion to the deficit if approved.

The Treasury source said that it is regarded as "not only possible, but likely" that the revenue sharing bill would clear Congress by the middle of the year. The measure is sponsored by Rep. Wilbur Mills, chairman of the committee.

Nixon's budget may prove to be pretty close to balance on full-employment basis if the revenue keeps coming into the Treasury at an accelerated clip.

A full-employment budget pegs expenditures at the level of revenues that would be produced if the economy were operating at high prosperity, which it isn't now.

Good Friday

JERUSALEM (AP) — More than 10,000 Christian pilgrims, some carrying 10-foot wooden crosses, retraced Christ's final steps to Calvary through narrow lanes of Jerusalem on Good Friday.

Israeli troops with automatic rifles stood guard on rooftops and in the streets.

The worshippers started out from the first section of the cross where Christ was condemned for sedition. Today a Moslem school stands where Pontius Pilate had his headquarters.

An hour later the marchers reached the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, which some Christians say is the site of Calvary and Christ's tomb.

Arab Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts lined the route while little Arab boys darted among the marchers, hawking Holy Land souvenirs and postcards.

Bishop John Kilday of Nazareth, a Roman Catholic, led the mile-long procession.

Inside the time-scarred Crusader church, Jerusalem's Roman Catholic Patriarch Joseph Beltritti recited prayers.

Outside Jerusalem's walls, hundreds of Protestant worshippers prayed at the Garden Tomb, which some Protestant authorities contend is the site of Calvary.

Israeli officials estimated more than 20,000 visitors were in Jerusalem for Easter Week and the Jewish Passover festival recalling the exodus of the Jews from Egypt.

Singing hymns as they walked, the pilgrims filed through richly-scented Arab bazaars where souvenir salesmen called out, "Pilgrims welcome, no charge for looking."

"It's difficult to get beyond the commercialism of Easter," said Robert Edgar, a pilgrim from New York. "But I think it will all mean more to me now that I have followed in the traditional footsteps of Christ."

Jesse Jackson—PUSH

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, founder of People United to Save Humanity (PUSH), said Friday his two primary goals will be improvement for minority groups in the areas of education and labor.

He said at a news conference after a meeting of PUSH directors that by November PUSH hopes to establish chapters in 20 cities and from these work for national reform on the twin fronts.

At Jackson, treasurer of PUSH, also released a financial statement showing that income from a fund-raising dinner at Chicago's McCormick Place totaled $219,168. After expenses, Johnson said, net profits were $142,231, including more than $60,000 which was pledged for tickets but not yet collected.

The dinner was held during a convention of blacks in Gary, Ind.

Excluding the benefits from the dinner, Johnson said, PUSH has taken in $130,000 and spent $109,000 since its founding Christmas Day 1971.

He said the board of directors estimated it will cost PUSH $371,000 annually to operate on a nationwide basis. The prime sources of the income will be an annual dinner, patterned after the one held March 10 at McCormick Place, and a Black Exposition, similar to one held last fall, which led to Jackson's break with the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Jackson resigned as national director of the SCLC's Operation Breadbasket after the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy questioned accounting procedures used during Black Expo 1971.

Jackson then formed PUSH.

The black minister said the PUSH annual budget is almost $300,000 allotted by SCLC for Breadbasket.

Moderating The Cruelty

Whether or not the Supreme Court rules that the death penalty is "cruel and unusual punishment" to the extent of being unconstitutional, it certainly seems so in simple human terms. One aspect of the cruelty involved is the long period of waiting, not under ordinary prison conditions—which are had enough in any case—but in the particular hell of a Death Row cubicle.

Prisoners on Death Row generally are kept in a kind of suspended animation, often for years, while awaiting their fate. They are set apart from others who, merely serving time, need not live with the probability that one day when all appeals have failed they will be put to death.

Those with the Damoclean Sword of the death sentence hanging over them are in most cases not even allowed the solace of work. Intentionally or not, it is an element of their punishment that they are set apart and have little to distract them from reflection of their hideous plight.

For these and other reasons it is heartening that the Death Row in Missouri Penitentiary at Jefferson City has been abolished. The rationale offered by Warden Harold R. Swenson is interesting, and we commend it to the attention of prison authorities in other states.

"These inmates," he said in commenting on the move, "have been held in segregated facilities since their arrival at the prison. This involved a number of years in some cases, and it created a situation of enforced idleness, which is contrary to progressive penal philosophy."

Under the new dispensation, the 16 inmates hitherto on Death Row will be housed just as the others are, and eat in the prison dining room. They also are to receive work assignments. In short, as Warden Swenson says, they "will be given the same privileges as the inmates in the general population." It is a humane step which other states that still maintain Death Rows ought to emulate.

Farm Subsidy Fiasco

For years the reports of giant farm subsidies have been a recurrent source of public irritation. Taxpayers were annually regaled with stories about government payments intended to hold production of certain crops in balance with demand — payments amounting in some cases to hundreds of thousands or even several million dollars to large growers.

Congress finally yielded to popular outrage about this, and last year for the first time a ceiling was placed on subsidies. Henceforth, Congress decreed, no more than $55,000 could be paid to any farmer.

As some perhaps cynical observers predicted, this limitation has proved to be a fiasco. Rep. Paul Findley of Pittsfield goes further and calls what has happened a "cruel joke" on the taxpayers.

The phrase seems apt. For what the agricultural fat cats did was to break up their vast land holdings into smaller units and collect the $55,000 maximum on each unit. In consequence, a Department of Agriculture report discloses, the net saving on payments last year in comparison with 1970 was a trifling $2,183,976. The 1970 outlay for crop subsidies was $3.3 billion; for 1971 it was $2.8 billion, with some of the decline due to changes in programs.

In this drama the Agriculture Department has cast itself in the role of a champion of the big growers. The Department looked so benignly on partnership formation and other arrangements with the effect of evading the $55,000 limit that only 466 of the nation's farmers had their payments directly cut back last year.

Findley thinks all this justifies House Agriculture Committee hearings on whether the subsidy restrictions ought to be tightened. We concur in that.

Middle East Peace Prospects Infinitely Better

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Usually drowned out in the drumbeat of Arab oratory is the fact that prospects for at least a de facto Middle East peace seem infinitely better for 1972 than they did in 1971.

Lending weight to such a conclusion are two and possibly three recent events.

One is the just-concluded elections held in what amounted almost to a holiday atmosphere in northern towns of the Israeli-occupied west bank of the Jordan River. Arab voters turned out in record numbers despite threats from the Palestinian guerrillas.

Another is Washington's assurance to visiting King Hussein of Jordan of continued economic and military assistance without an accompanying shriek of rage from the Israelis with whom Jordan still is in a state of war.

Do Not Expect Threat

The Israelis obviously do not expect a military threat to arise from Jordan with whom they share their longest border and which has, man-for-man, the best army among the Arabs.

A possible third is the facts surrounding Hussein's recently announced plan for a federated Jordanian kingdom of two autonomous parts based on the east and west banks of the Jordan.

The plan was received cautiously by the United States, without comment by the Soviet Union and was denounced by both Israeli and other Arab states.

How much of the Israeli indignation was smoke-screen is something for the future to decide. And whether secret meetings indeed were held between high Israeli and Jordanian leaders is of less moment than the fact that the plan itself is the closest thing yet to Arab recognition of things as they are.

Certainly Israeli approval of the Hussein plan would have been a signal for even more violent opposition from other Arab states, especially Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Libya and Algeria.

Aware of Willingness
Hussein long since has been aware of the willingness of his Arab neighbors to sacrifice his regime on the altar of so-called Arab unity.

His action in crushing Palestinian guerrillas inside Jordan led to a break in relations with Syria, Libya and Algeria and the expulsion of the Jordanian ambassador from Iraq.

It led also to a realignment of Jordanian troop strength after some 200 Syrian tanks crossed the border briefly in support of the guerrillas.

With U.S. aid, the Jordanian army of some 60,000 has been reorganized with special stress on armor.

Hussein's courage against his Arab neighbors and his approach to reality do not in themselves necessarily presage peace talks. But they could be a signpost to the future.

The Pre-Mao Rich Still Fare Better

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA) — A Chinese friend who fled the mainland when Mao Tse-tung came to power has received word the property he left in Shanghai 22 years ago is still drawing profits.

These profits, or at least part of them, he understands, have been banked in his name.

My friend, who has been denounced by Peking as a counter-revolutionary, does not dare go back to claim the money. Nor is he willing to send back an agent to negotiate for him. He is certain any agent he sends will be in trouble because of his own anti-Communist activities.

It should be noted that this particular friend has been an active anti-Communist guerrilla in Southeast Asia.

The property in question consisted of 200 houses in Shanghai which Mao's government, he said, took over by decree. But so far as my friend can determine, he is still "part owner" — or at least is being credited with income from the rentals.

China watchers here note that Peking of late has been seeking better relations with overseas Chinese for purposes that are not yet clear. But they doubt any former capitalists or landlords still "own" property, even half or quarter interests.

It is more likely that Peking valued the confiscated houses at some deflated level and now pays interest on that sum.

One way or another, my friend has heard about the present status of the property of about 40 of his wealthy friends of pre-Mao days. Some owned banks, some department stores, factories and real estate.

He believes the bankers were wiped out, though some escaped with their liquid assets and are now doing quite well in Brazil and other lands. As for the others, the Communists took over each man's property and set up companies to operate these investments.

In each case my friend investigated, his former associates receive some income from the property. In some cases, the former owner has stayed on as a manager or technical advisor.

His brother is still in China. Before Mao's victory, he owned several factories. Today he receives some returns from these and is a director or manager of sorts.

These once-wealthy friends apparently have no way of investing their incomes. They cannot send funds out of the country. If they live abroad, the money cannot be changed into foreign currency and sent to them.

There is, therefore, not much they can spend their profits on. Most items are rationed. But they can live a little better than the average.

My informant's old friends and relatives use their money to buy scarce foods on the black market, at four, six or eight or ten times the normal prices — usually fats, oil or meat. Or they buy clothing or other luxuries when they can find them. Some are able to drive cars.

The wealthy cannot live alone in large houses, for there is a strict limit on the amount of room each person can have. If his family is small and the house large, a part of the space must be rented to others, under government management.

My friend also understands that children are able to inherit capital holdings from their parents. (China watchers doubt (Turn To Market Page)

Ann Landers:

Tells Women To Nag Husbands Into Good Health

Dear Ann Landers: I just read a very sensible article that says it is every wife's responsibility to nag her husband into good health, if she must. No woman, according to the author, is a good wife if she sits by silently while husband drinks too much, eats too much, or smokes too much. She must nag, nag, nag. It's up to the wife to get her husband to see a doctor for an annual physical checkup. If he is on medication, it's her job to see that he takes it.

It's also the wife's job to get her husband out of his easy chair and make him exercise. Most wives kill their husbands by preparing high-calorie meals and providing them with snacks. Then they let the guy sit in a chair and watch TV until he falls asleep. This is what causes heart attacks.

Please tell women everywhere who love their husbands to nag them. It could add years to their lives.—Orlando

Dear Or: Who wants more years like that? Sorry, I don't agree. Nagging never kept anyone alive. It has, however, killed many marriages.

The man who eats too much, smokes too much and drinks too much must be given an incentive to cut out the gluttony.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you step aside for a few minutes and let me be Ann Landers? I wish someone had given ME the advice I am about to offer.

Here it is: If you plan to marry a man who has children by a previous marriage, take a good look at those kids and decide whether or not you'd be willing to take them into your home. Even if it seems like a remote possibility, try to imagine what your life would be like with those kids under your roof.

The "impossible" just happened. My husband's ex-wife is in a sanitarium and her mother who was taking care of the kids had a stroke. I was told last night to get the bedroom ready because his children are coming to live with us.

Ann, I'm fit to be tied. The oldest is a boy, ten, a real hell-cat. The middle one, another boy, age seven, looks as if he's going to be a carbon copy of his older brother. The baby is a girl, five. She still wets the bed and has a very limited vocabulary. I think she is retarded.

When I married Joe, this wasn't in the cards; but it happened anyway. I've got to make the best of it, but my love for him just flew out the window.—Pittsburgh Lament

Dear Pitt: That was a funny kind of love, Lady.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the teenager whose parents had a miserable marriage and fought all the time was interesting because my parents are in the same leaky boat. That girl said she learned something valuable from her parents. Never get married.

I have a different point of view. I'm going to remember the lessons I learned at home and apply them to my own life. Both mom and dad are in the wrong. My mom usually starts the arguments because she wants attention. Dad ignores her. The only way she can get him to talk is by starting a fight. She knows just what will set him off and needles him until he blows his top. Then he says some awful thing to her and she's got him on the defensive.

When I listen to them, I wonder if they were ever young once and in love. I wonder how they felt about each other when they got married. I wonder what happened in their lives to make them the way they are now. What do you think, Ann?—One Who Watches

Dear O.W.W.: I think you've raised some interesting questions. Why don't you ask them?

On the other hand you must be on guard against concentrating so completely on a single endeavor that you fail to develop talents vital to your general success.

Yours is a colorful personality that often seems calculated to the winning over of other people's friends to your side. This, however, is far from the truth. You have no desire to gain supporters at the expense of those relationships which others have carefully built up over a period of time. On the other hand, you cannot be held responsible if the supporters of others be so attracted to you that they switch loyalties; you can only hope that they don't switch back again.

Highly attractive to members of the opposite sex, you know how to use dress, behavior and voice to your best advantage in this regard. Romantic and somewhat too sentimental, you will have to learn the difference between love and infatuation before you will be able to respond wisely to your own emotions. You could easily be taken in a display of gratitude, that you misconstrue as romantic attachment.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Sunday, April 2
ARIES (March 22-April 20)—Keep on the right side of virtue. Romance is in the air—and you might be very wise to leave it there. A good day for putting things off.
TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Settle your mind about a number of things through the peaceful means suggested during morning worship. Keep thoughts to yourself for the time being.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Take steps to establish a firm foundation in the making of a friendship. Strangers have a great deal to do with your progress today.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Take care that in the rush to get into a Sunday afternoon outing, you don't forget an important Sunday morning promise. Soften your outlook.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Don't allow your demands to stand in the way of a good relationship with one who isn't quite up to what you expect of him or her.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—Get back to nature if you expect to get to the source of present difficulties. You will be able to think more clearly out of doors.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Where romance is concerned, be wise; allow the other party as much right to change his (or her) mind as you allow yourself. Evening brings new joys.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Present activities may not be ideal insofar as the expression of your talents is concerned—but they may well lead to just what you want. Hang on!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 20)—A Sunday that favors personal interests for Sagittarius. Keep your mind on your own activities—and off those of other people. Don't interfere.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)—Open your home to those who may be in need of some spiritual warmth. You can be of service to another even though you have nothing material to offer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—Take as much pleasure—and as much understanding—as you can from each of the day's hours. Without doubt, you will soon benefit from a cheerful outlook.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—Morning worship brings the kind of peace that releases pent-up energies and allows you to go about the rest of the day a real winner!

Legislature Pressed For Billboard Action

SPRINGFIELD (UPI)—Billboards are likely to be high on the list of "things to do" when the legislature resumes work April 10.

Both state and federal officials warned Thursday that if the legislators do not act—within four days of the time they return—to control placement of billboards, the state will lose $32 million in federal highway funds.

The federal warning came from Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe in the form of a telegram to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie. Volpe said that, while he originally had set Thursday as the deadline for Illinois to come into compliance with federal standards on billboard placement, he would extend the deadline to April 14.

Volpe originally imposed the deadline after the legislature passed House Bill 3680—A measure which was designed to control billboards. That measure, however, gave special "spot zoning" power to local authorities and, according to Volpe, failed to meet standards set in the Federal Highway Beautification Act.

Ogilvie then used his amendatory veto power to bring the bill into compliance with the federal requirements. However, both houses of the legislature still have to approve the governor's changes before the bill can become law.

Also Thursday, Illinois Attorney General William Scott released a letter he has sent to legislative leaders, urging them to pass the bill as amended by the governor.

"If the Illinois Legislature does not correct the defects and enact the proper billboard regu-

"What is Easter, Mommy?"

"Is it the time when bunnies get born?" I looked at my little daughter, appalled.

Did she really think of Easter in terms of sugared eggs, fluffy bunnies and pretty candies? Had I given her the impression that for grownups Easter is a time for new clothes, flowered hats and fragrant corsages? Surely, at some time, I must have told her the real story of Easter. Or had I?

I was really flabbergasted at my negligence—it took my little daughter to make me realize it. I dismissed my house chores and sat down right then to tell her the glorious Easter story of the Resurrection. I told her what hope this event brought for all of mankind—with its promise of eternal life.

I might add that the next week I enrolled my daughter in church school. And my husband and I started attending church again. We haven't missed a Sunday since.

Academy Awards Now Voted Almost Wholly On Merit

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—If the Academy Awards were once a popularity contest, with Oscars going to the wealthiest, most influential and best party givers, that day is over.

The Oscars in recent years have been voted almost wholly on merit.

The past three actresses to win the Oscar—Glenda Jackson, Maggie Smith and Barbra

Streisand—are not exactly the toasts of Hollywood. Most likely to win the award for best actress this year is Jane Fonda for her performance in "Kluge."

Jane is about as popular with Hollywood establishmentarians as a resurgence of the Visigoths. Her lovability quotient in Movietown is only slightly higher than it is at the Pentagon.

Ironically, her enormously popular father, Henry by name, has never been voted the golden statuette.

No Popularity Kid
If Jane is not the popularity kid along with the Bel Air Circuit, she is several degrees closer to being elected president of the Motion Picture Academy than George C. Scott.

Missouri, Illinois Given Ultimatum

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Transportation Secretary John Volpe has told Missouri and Illinois officials to get together on a site for a second major St. Louis metropolitan airport or possibly have the site selected for them, it was disclosed Thursday.

The ultimatum was contained in a letter to Govs. Richard Ogilvie of Illinois and Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri, and to officials of St. Louis and St. Louis County and six additional counties in Missouri and Illinois.

Illinois, which has proposed a Waterloo-Columbia site for the airport southeast of St. Louis, stands alone in its application before the Federal Aviation Administration.

Volpe said in the letter he is directing former Coast Guard Adm. Russell R. Waesche, a regional Department of Transportation representative, to call a meeting of involved officials to see whether an agreement on an airport site can be reached.

Agreement on an airport site must be reached in 60 days, Volpe said in the letter, or action will be taken on an application for an Illinois site.

Waesche, he said, will report back to him within 60 days. "If after receiving the report I conclude that agreement on a site is unlikely, I will request the FAA to act upon the application before it in accordance with existing procedures," Volpe said.

St. Louis Mayor A. J. Cervantes, whose office made the Volpe letter public, is a prime advocate of an Illinois site for the airport. St. Louis County Supervisor Lawrence K. Roos, an arch opponent, was not available for immediate comment.

Fury Of N. Viet Attacks Forces S. Viets To Flee

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese attacks rose in fury Friday, forcing South Vietnamese troops to abandon two major bases and an outpost south of the demilitarized zone.

One base was given up Thursday in the enemy's first day of the heaviest attacks there in four years. Field reports said yet another base may have been abandoned.

Civilians began fleeing southward as enemy rocket, artillery and mortar barrages raked the bases and towns along most of the demilitarized zone separating the Vietnamese.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the Saigon command, described the enemy attacks in the northern sector as "the beginning of a high point of military activity in this particular area." He stopped short of calling it the enemy offensive that the allies have been predicting in the far north.

High level intelligence, Vietnamese sources said earlier, had indicated the enemy planned to launch a coordinated, countrywide offensive Friday morning. But aside from the fierce shelling along the DMZ and an upsurge of fighting in the central highlands, most of the country was quiet.

However, sources said more enemy activity could occur in other areas during the next several days, and an upgrading of alert status for allied forces in some areas indicated this was expected.

Senior U.S. officers, including Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the commander of American forces in Vietnam, are known to believe the Communist command's much-heralded offensive will occur in phases, hitting at a variety of targets over a period of several weeks or months.

Sources said Friday the heightened enemy activity along the DMZ probably is one of these phases, and is especially intensive because of the ease with which the North Vietnamese can keep themselves resupplied along the DMZ.

Field reports said the South Vietnamese abandoned bases at Khe Gio and Fuller and an outpost at Ba Ho East, all in the western and central section of the Quang Tri Province south of the DMZ.

Fire Base Pedro, the westernmost government position along the DMZ, also may have been abandoned under heavy enemy artillery, rocket and mortar attack, according to field reports.

Enemy gunners slammed artillery, mortars and rockets into five South Vietnamese bases in the eastern sector of Quang Tri province throughout the day.

There was no immediate report on casualties in any of the attacks.

Not since the artillery sieges of the former U.S. base at Con Thien and Khe Sanh in 1967 and 1968 have the North Vietnamese launched such heavy attacks.

UMW's Boyle Convicted For Fund Misuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — W.A. "Tony" Boyle, president of the United Mine Workers, was convicted Friday on all 13 counts of a federal indictment which charged him with heading a conspiracy to pump union funds into political campaigns.

Two other officials of the union, secretary-treasurer John Owens and chief lobbyist James Kmetz, were found innocent of the charges against them.

Boyle shook off newsmen's questions after the verdicts which could bring a total 32 years in prison, $120,000 in fines and bar him from holding office in the powerful union of some 200,000 members.

Judge Charles R. Richey of U.S. District Court continued Boyle's bond, allowing him to remain free until sentencing, for which no date was set.

An appeal is expected.

The trial marked the first federal prosecution of a union leader on charges of spending union dues money for campaign contributions in federal elections.

Boyle, 67, was charged with conspiracy in directing contributions totaling $49,250 to both Democratic and Republican campaign fund raisers, with 11 specific contributions and with converting $5,000 in union funds for use in one of the contributions.

The largest single contribution during the period covered by the indictment, 1966 to 1969, was $30,000 given to a dinner for Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's 1968 presidential candidacy.

Owens, 81, and Kmetz, 47, were both named in the conspiracy count. Owens was also charged in one of the specific contributions. Kmetz was charged with aiding and abetting two of the contributions and the $5,000 conversion.

The Department of Labor has sued to overturn Boyle's bitterly contested 1969 union election victory over the late Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski.

A decision on the election suit is expected this spring. The term Boyle won in 1969 expires in 1975.

The government contended during the two-week trial that the funds contributed were from the union's general treasury rather than from some other voluntary source which would have made the expenditures legal.

The contributions were made from a back account held by Labor's Non-Partisan League, the political arm of the union.

Boyle maintained on the stand that he did not think the league's funds came from the union treasury.

The government maintained that the union's records showed the source of the league's money, and that more than 98 percent of it came from the union treasury.

Navy Chaplain Found Innocent Of Adultery

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Navy Chaplain Andrew F. Jensen was acquitted Friday night on a charge of misconduct by adultery. Six officer-jurors deliberated more than two hours before returning the verdict.

Jensen was the first chaplain to face a general court martial in U.S. Navy history. He was accused by the wives of two officers who were active in his chapel program at Cecil Field Naval Air Station.

Mary Ann Curran, 24, testified she had sexual intercourse with the chaplain on 17 occasions between August 1970 and March 1971.

Lora Gudbranson, 38, specified four love trysts at motels and at his quarters between May and July 1971.

Through two days of testimony on the stand, Jensen denied any intimate involvement with the two women.

When the jurors called a 10-minute recess after 45 minutes of deliberations, military judge Capt. Ben Cole instructed the three captains and three commanders not to discuss their decision with anyone or say how they or any other member voted.

"This applies not only for this time but for all time," Cole said. Cole immediately adjourned the court after the verdict was announced.

In closing arguments earlier in the day, the attorney for 43-year-old Cmdr. Jensen said the two who accused his client of adultery were "sick and conspiring women." The prosecution said the women had much to lose by coming forward.

Students Head South For Rites Of Spring

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Following in the sandy footsteps of young celebrants of years past, thousands of college students have gathered at warm weather resorts to perform their annual rites of spring.

By official accounts, this year's gatherings of students liberated by spring vacations were more sedate than past migrations toward the sun. And in some areas, the anticipated crush of young people simply failed to develop.

"I don't understand it," said Police Sgt. Keith D. Santa Cruz, Calif. "It seems like the kids have all gone somewhere else this year."

In Palm Springs, Calif., Sgt. M. D. Thomas shrugged, "I don't know where they are, maybe they've gone to the mountains."

In Florida's Ft. Lauderdale, a traditional stop in the search for a more perfect beach blanket, Chamber of Commerce officials estimated some 10,000 students were on hand.

"They have been absolutely no trouble at all," an official reported.

Police Chief W. C. Newton estimated the search for sun, surf and the occasional can of suds would bring "tens of thousands" of students to Myrtle Beach, S.C. But he said he expected no trouble.

"Student attitudes must be changing," he said. "The conduct was mighty good last year and we had to make only a few cases, compared with two and three years ago when there were some hard-to-handle crowds and we made a good many arrests."

The number of young people abandoning their campuses for the Bahamas also was put in the thousands. Officials reported few incidents of rowdiness, although one or two youths were arrested each day in Nassau on marijuana charges.

"Seems to be more kids this year, although they always come in droves," commented one observer. "As a whole, they seem pretty well behaved, though possibly a little dirtier and more shaggy than last year."

Some 2,500 American youths were reported gathered at a 429-acre area west of San Juan, Puerto Rico, the site of a three-day hard rock festival. A Superior Court judge had barred the festival, then reversed himself Thursday after stipulating that no drugs were to be sold at the gathering.

URGENT CREATION OF UNIT TO PUSH FOR NEEDS OF AGED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House Conference on Aging has urged creation of a special agency within the executive office of the President to coordinate planning and push for needs of the elderly.

"The Administration on Aging should be retained within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare but it should be raised to the status of an independent agency within the department, reporting directly to the secretary," said a conference report released Thursday.

The conference recommended that parallel agencies be set up at the state level.

DITA BEARD TO BE RELEASED TUESDAY

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Dita Beard, the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. lobbyist who has figured in a Senate investigation of the Justice Department's handling of an ITT antitrust case, will be released from a hospital here on Tuesday, her physician said Friday.

But the 53-year-old woman will remain in the Denver area and under surveillance for her heart ailment for three or four weeks. She will return to Rocky Mountain Osteopathic Hospital several times a week for check-ups, said Dr. L. M. Radetsky.

"It's been pretty quiet," reported Lifeguard Capt. James Richard at California's Santa Monica Beach, long a mecca for the sort of activity that inspired such film classics as "Beach Blanket Bingo" and "How to Succeed in Love and Business."

"The crowds are running 10,000 to 20,000 a day, compared to previous years of 50,000-100,000," Richard said.

Mexican border officials reported they were refusing tourist visas to American males with hair considered excessively long. Nonetheless, 1,000 students were reported at Guaymas, a resort 250 miles below the border.

Bloodmobile Surpasses Quota At Beardstown

BEARDSTOWN — It was the greatest blood donor effort ever sponsored in Beardstown, as reported by sponsors of the Bloodmobile visit Tuesday.

The quota of 100 units of blood was surpassed by a total donation of 151 pints.

Important also was the fact that the effort to interest first-time donors was successful with 53 new donors.

A special effort was made to collect blood for former Beardstown Mayor N. B. (Hap) Murray, who will submit to open heart surgery at St. John's hospital in Springfield April 13. Sixty-eight persons helped this cause.

Joan O'Connor, nurse in charge of the bloodmobile visit at the CIPS company offices here, said this is the final visit of the second year in the west Cass county blood program.

Thirteen donations by Masons were made for George Wilbur Bell's replacement plasma, following heart surgery in February.

Most Valuable Player

Paul Reither, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. W. Reither, was named "most valuable player" and received a personal trophy at the second annual banquet for athletes at St. John's Lutheran School.

Reither and Mike Dour, captains of the team, also received the second-place trophy won at the Springfield tournament and presented it to Norman Venz for the school.

After the banquet, Roy Roberts, toastmaster, told of covering the state basketball tournament for the Illinois Star; and Bob Dixon of Illinois Bell, as guest speaker, gave an account of the company coverage of the state tournament on television. He also showed a film recap of the coverage over the past 20 years.

Crashes

One Air Force man who helped recover the bodies of the crew from smoldering wreckage that was scattered over a quarter-mile said only three of the bodies were recognizable.

The Air Force said the names of the seven men aboard the bomber would be withheld pending notification of next of kin.

One witness said it looked as if the pilot made an effort to guide the plane away from McCoy's civilian terminal and populated areas and crash it in a nearby woods.

"I heard the plane first. I'm just out of the Marine Corps and I know the sound of an engine in trouble," said Tom Smith, 24, who smashed down a redwood fence to rescue Mrs. Robertson and her three children who were trapped in their yard near their burning home.

"The engines were popping. It looked as if the pilot was trying to make the woods to crash," Smith said. "The plane started falling apart in the air. Metal fragments under the wing started breaking loose. Then it just died."

Air Force officials said the craft was on a routine training flight and was not carrying nuclear bombs. The plane was assigned to the 308th Bomb Wing at McCoy.

Quad Cities No Longer High Jobless Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Quad Cities was one of two areas removed Friday from the Department of Labor's list of areas with substantial unemployment of 6 per cent or more.

Lorain-Elyria, Ohio, and Davenport-Rock Island-Moline in Illinois and Iowa were removed, reducing to 55 the number of areas with substantial unemployment among the national total of 150 major labor market areas.

The national unemployment rate is 5.7 per cent.

The announcement said four other major labor areas were moved from the category of moderate unemployment of 3 to 5.9 per cent to the category of low joblessness of 1.5 to 2.9 per cent. The four are Asheville, Durham and Greensboro-Winston-Salem-High Point in North Carolina, and Greenville, S.C.

"With this month's change, 95 of the 150 major labor areas are in unemployment classifications under 6 per cent," the announcement said.

"Ten of the areas are in the low unemployment group. This is the largest number of areas in the low unemployment category since February, 1971," it said.

However, four smaller labor areas moved up to the list of substantial jobless areas. They were Canton, Ga.; Piquette City, Miss.; Scottsboro, Ala.; and Crofton, Ind.

Three other areas were moved up to the list of persistent unemployment where jobless rates have been 6 per cent or more for the last calendar year and at least 50 per cent higher than the national average for several years. The three areas are Centerville and Cumberland, Md., and Anthers, Okla.

Post Bonds For Cops Charged With Extortion

CHICAGO (AP) — Eight policemen, a former policeman and another man each posted bond of $4,500 Friday on charges of extorting money from West Side saloon keepers by threatening them with arrest or harm to their business.

The men were named in indictments returned Thursday by a federal grand jury, which climaxed a 14-month investigation into alleged shakedowns in the Austin police district.

They were charged under the Hobbs Act, covering extortion involving interstate commerce. The government contends the bar served liquor moving in interstate commerce.

The indictments also charged some of the defendants with false testimony before the grand jury.

The policemen in the indictments are two lieutenants, a sergeant, and five patrolmen. All had worked in the Austin district.

They have been suspended from the police force and Supt. James B. Conlisk said he will ask the police board to fire them.

EASTER MORNING SERVICE BROADCAST LIVE ON CBS

"Easter at Riverside Church," a special CBS News religious presentation for Easter Sunday, will be broadcast live from the famed Manhattan church on Sunday, April 2, (10-11 a.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

The service will begin with a fanfare of brass instruments. Trumpets and timpani will join the Riverside organ in a selection of music which includes such traditional hymns as "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today" and "The Strife Is O'er," as well as such contemporary American works as "An Easter Introit" by Richard Slater, "The Day of Resurrection" by Thomas Matthews, and "Alleluia" by Searle Wright. A highlight of the musical presentation will be the congregation joining the choir in singing the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah."

Dr. Ernest T. Campbell, a minister at Riverside church, will deliver the sermon, "The Man Who Left Too Soon," with the paradox of gaining through loss at its theme. The apostle Peter will be the central figure of the sermon, which will deal with the death and resurrection of Christ as seen through the eyes of the apostle.

AQUACADE FILMED IN MEXICO

"Aquacade at Acapulco," starring Tony Randall, Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara and Ed McMahon, with special guest star Mel Brooks, filmed entirely on location in Mexico, will be presented as an hour-long special 7-8 p.m. Wednesday, April 5, on the CBS Television Network.

With Randall serving as host as well as performer, the program will feature Stiller and Meara in a pair of comedy routines, one concerned with food and the other with buying bikinis, and McMahon will describe the water activities and interview Brooks, who portrays a German archeologist.

Senator McGovern's appearance on the weekly broadcast will originate from Milwaukee, Wis. He is entered—along with the other leading Democratic Presidential hopefuls—in the pivotal Wisconsin primary on April 4.

McGovern will be interviewed by CBS News Correspondent George Herman, moderator of "Face the Nation," and two other reporters to be selected.

EASTER SPECIAL

Anthony Quinn, a two-time Academy Award-winner, heads a distinguished cast of performers in the exciting screen version of Morris L. West's best-seller "The Shoes of the Fisherman," which will be a special three-hour film presentation on "The CBS Sunday Night Movies" on Easter Sunday, April 2, (6:30-9:30 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network. Laurence Olivier, Oskar Werner, David Janssen, Vittorio De Sica, Leo McKern, John Gielgud, Barbara Jefford and Rosemarie Dexter co-star in the picture, which will be seen for the first time on television.

SPECIAL TELLS HISTORY OF EARTH

The voices of Maureen Stapleton, Morris Carnovsky and Jack Warden will be featured in "Dig," a special musical program which explains in cartoon form the history of the Earth by going back through the various strata that make up our planet's crust, which will be presented 11-11:26 a.m. Saturday, April 8, on the CBS Television Network.

Animation for "Dig" is by the award-winning husband-and-wife team of John and Faith Hubley, and renowned composer-conductor Quincy Jones has written the original music. Jones and the Hubleys collaborated on the lyrics.

Gregg Morris Turned On By Kids

NEW YORK (AP) — Gregg Morris, "Mission: Impossible's" electronics wizard since its beginnings six years ago, returned to the East Coast the other day for a short visit before returning to his screw drivers and wire snippers for a seventh year of trapping villains.

Gregg has found his role of Barney Collier opening all sorts of show business doors which are closed to newcomers. He has played more than 30 roles in films and guest shots on other TV series and even turned out a record album.

"But I seem to be turned on by kids," he said. "The thing I really enjoy is working with them and for them."

Married and with three youngsters of his own ranging from 10 to 15, Morris is forever cutting out of Hollywood for cerebral palsy telethons, hospital visits or trips to schools—preferably in deprived sections, to sit down for rap sessions with students.

Some of his concern for young people probably stems from his own peripatetic upbringing. Born in Cleveland, he lost his father when he was young, and traveled around the country as his mother's jobs changed. He lived in New York's Harlem, Poughkeepsie, went back to Cleveland. He says that as a lonely 15-year-old he was introspective and even then beginning to live by a code of what he calls "introspective egoism"—belief in himself.

"I heard a man named Emmett Fox say 'God is within me and therefore I am,'" Morris explained. "It was one of those things that instantly made complete sense and it changed everything for me. After that I always believed that somewhere there would be success for

What Happens After Franco Leaves The Scene In Spain?

Female Truckers File Sex Bias Charges

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Two petite female truck drivers have filed sex discrimination charges after a company ruling that prohibits single women from making long-distance hauls with men drivers.

"Ever since I was a little kid I wanted to drive a big truck," said Virginia Barnes, an attractive 35-year-old brunette. "They gave me a chance and then they took it away from me."

Mrs. Barnes and 48-year-old Pauline Blackburn have filed complaints with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission against Watkins Motor Lines Inc. of Lakeland.

The women complained after company officials decreed on March 1 that drivers of opposite sexes could not team up on trucks with sleeping quarters unless they were married.

"There is less chance of hanky-panky on the road than there would be in the trucking offices," scoffed Mrs. Blackburn, a pretty divorcee.

"I think I should be able to drive a truck because of my ability, not because I'm married," added Mrs. Barnes, a mother of two who is in the process of divorcing her husband.

Barney R. Brown, vice president of the Lakeland trucking firm, said that the ruling "had nothing to do with discrimination. It creates too much of a problem."

"The policy of Watkins Motor Lines is to have both male and female drivers," he said. "We do allow male drivers to drive together or single, and we do allow female drivers to drive together or single."

Watkins' personnel director Arthur Farr added that the company employs several husband-wife teams.

Mrs. Barnes and Mrs. Blackburn, both under 5-foot-2 and 105 pounds, learned to drive the huge tractor-trailer rigs at a vocational school. They handled Watkins rigs for nearly three months before the company ruling.

Both women say they never asked for any special treatment from their male partners.

Mrs. Barnes said, "I got my blouse dirty and I got my hands dirty. When we unloaded 40,000 pounds of concentrate, I unloaded my share—half."

MONTANA GIRL NOMINATED AS FIRST HOUSE PAGE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 17-year-old Montana girl has been nominated to be the first of her sex to serve as a page in the House of Representatives.

Rep. Dick Shoup, R-Mont., has sent the name of Kathi Dayton of Stevensville to House Republican Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan for appointment as a page.

Shoup urged that Kathi be judged "strictly upon her personal qualifications and not by her sex."

"Considering that Congress has passed the Equal Rights Amendment," he said, "It's about time the House of Representatives strikes down a few sexual barriers of its own." Shoup wrote. The proposed constitutional amendment is being ratified by the states.

Kathi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Dayton, was a page in the Montana legislature last year.

The Senate has four girl pages.

SIPC: Some Protection For Small Investor

By CARLTON SMITH
Many small investors seem to believe they're now protected against loss—just as a bank depositor is protected by FDIC—under the federal legislation that recently created the Securities Investor Protection Corporation.

Not quite. SIPC (call it "Sipic") provides protection similar to that of insured bank deposits, but there are important differences. While Sipic should make it possible for the small investor to sleep better in times of trouble, the notion that it takes all the risk out of securities investments is, unfortunately, not true.

Sipic comes to your aid only when your brokerage firm goes bankrupt. It operates, in that case, to make sure that securities owned by the investor (up to $50,000 worth), which were in the custody of the firm, are recovered by the investor. There's protection for up to $20,000 of cash in the brokerage account.

Normal hazards of investing are none of Sipic's business. If you load up on United Apex because it's supposed to be a hot number, and United Apex goes broke and your stock is worth zilch—that's your hard luck.

Even if you were assured most solemnly by somebody in the brokerage firm that United Apex was a wonderful investment, and just had to double in six months, it's still your personal disaster. Sipic isn't designed to take care of you, as an investor; it steps in to help in picking up the pieces when it's the brokerage firm that the disaster happens to.

First of all, Sipic is not an agency of the federal government. It's a private corporation of members, the members being all broker-dealers registered with the SEC and all members of national exchanges. Note that mutual funds are not included. Sipic isn't funded with federal money. Members are assessed a small percentage of gross revenues to build up a fund. However, if there's catastrophe on Wall Street on a large scale, Sipic can borrow up to $1 billion from the U.S. Treasury.

What are the mechanics of Sipic coming to the rescue? If a brokerage firm folds, Sipic applies to a federal court for appointment of a trustee, and

Army Plan To Scrap KP Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army's plan to do away with KP in "the new volunteer Army" by hiring civilians for the job has run into fire from some key congressmen. They say the money could be better spent elsewhere.

A House Appropriations Committee spokesman says several members have expressed doubts over the Army's request for $99 million in next year's budget to make permanent its experiment of replacing soldiers with civilian kitchen policemen, or KPs.

This has been one of the Army's key selling points in its campaign to recruit an all-volunteer force.

The committee spokesman said some members feel "that's a lot of money and a big departure from the way the Army has always done business."

In hearings with top Army leaders over the past several weeks, the spokesman said, some committee members questioned whether the money could be spent "on cancer research or even a new tank."

Other members, some of whom pulled KP in their Army days, suggested the troops might be better off keeping busy by peeling potatoes and washing dishes "than smoking marijuana," the spokesman said.

In response, the Army has gathered ammunition from its top field commanders for a counterattack to impress upon the committee the importance of the KP-replacement program to boost troop morale.

Gen. Michael S. Davison, the Army's commander in Europe, says keeping KP as part of a GI's duty "would be to renege on a promise and to undercut progress toward the modern volunteer Army."

The general said that by hiring civilians in Europe the Army has been able to return 3,500 soldiers to their primary duty. "This equates to more than four mechanized infantry battalions," he said.

Davison's comments and those from several other generals after being extracted from periodic reports by the commanders evaluating progress in the volunteer-Army campaign.

Gen. Ralph Haines, commander of the Continental Army Command, called KP the most "onerous and counterproductive task" and said the troops believe that "society is intelligent enough to recognize that soldiers have more to learn from their squad leader than their mess steward."

Former Area Resident Dies At 96 In West

Word has been received here of the death in California of a former Arcadia and Concord community resident, Frank O. Munson. Mr. Munson was 96 years of age and had lived in California for a number of years. He was the father of Mrs. Glenn R. (Helen) Woolridge, who sent word of his death in February to Mrs. Thelma L. Smith, Jacksonville route three. Funeral services were held Feb. 14 at the Gateway Little Chapel of the Chimes with Rev. Charles Fogg officiating. Private entombment was made in the Lincoln Memorial Park in the Long Beach, California, area.

Mr. Munson was born May 27, 1876. He was a long-time friend of the late Charles A. Ogle of the Concord community.

The sons and daughters of a friend who died in Hong Kong have apparently been allowed to acquire the father's income from a group of rental houses, or so my informant has been told. His old friends are, from time to time, he hears, the subject of a great deal of personal abuse. During the Cultural Revolution some were badly beaten. One had his arms broken. But if these men and women stay on the mainland and manage to endure these personal torments, they seem to fare better than the average mainland Chinese financially.

By FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

MADRID (AP) — On Montera Street in downtown Madrid, shoppers spill over the curb. In Malaga, airport traffic stacks up. In Barcelona, nightclub swingers pay $5 per scotch to watch a black girl from California. The soccer stadiums from Seville to Santander ring with the shouts of paying customers.

In Burgos, or Valencia or Badajoz, the scene in 1972 is the same: high rise apartments, hot dogs, detergents, traffic jams and millions of Spanish rushing to embrace the consumer society.

In the past 10 years, the per capita income has shot from $290 to nearly $1,000. Spain's gross national product surpasses many Western European countries.

There still are hundreds of burros, public watering troughs and rocky small town streets where a car cannot go. There still are thousands of men in black berets and widows in black dresses. But there are tens of thousands more of their grandsons and granddaughters in bell bottom trousers and miniskirts.

Nearly 500,000 Spaniards now live and work abroad in Common Market countries. Most any businessman worth his salt has crossed the Spanish border dozens of times more than the country's aging, 79-year-old leader.

Yet Gen. Francisco Franco Bahamonde, "caudillo (leader) of Spain," a chief of state who has been abroad—and then just over the border—only four times since seizing power in 1936, remains the undisputed ruler of the country.

A nonsmoker, nondrinker, nonparty-goer who usually is in bed at 10 o'clock, he contrasts sharply with a jetting President Nixon, or even Haile Selassie, the ageless Ethiopian emperor who still gets around the world. But neither Selassie nor Nixon can approach the absolute power of the 5-foot-4 general on whom Spain's future currently depends nearly 100 per cent.

After Franco goes, what will happen? Will Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, 34, have a long rule as king? Will the 220,000-man army take over?

"It would be very easy for us to follow the examples of Greece and Argentina," says an official of Opus Dei, the Catholic lay organization whose followers dominate the present Cabinet.

"Unless Franco starts surrendering some of his powers, the army will have to step in," says a young Socialist. "Man, listen," says a high official of the Bank of Spain, "Franco never moves quickly. Nothing will happen until Franco is ready."

"Is Spain really going to have a king and a monarchy in the 20th century?" asks a tourist.

According to Franco and the constitution he set up, it is.

But in the meantime, there are other problems. Food prices rose 12.4 per cent in 1971. The city of Madrid needs 60 miles more of subway lines. The country needs 300,000 more housing units annually. Free education still is no match for private education. Dirty air pollutes all the major cities. There is student unrest, church unrest and more strikes predicted for 1972 than any previous year.

After struggling for half a decade to get a preferential treaty with the Common Market, the government must renegotiate a new treaty with "the ten" or lose valuable trade. It faces the risk of losing the Spanish Sahara and its rich phosphate deposits. The feud with Britain over Gibraltar is unresolved.

"The trouble is that nobody is running the government," says a government official who has suited a fall from grace and dares not go all the way by identifying himself. "Nobody is taking the initiative."

"I am an optimist," says a former Cabinet minister. "But the lack of evolution towards the future in the last year is serious."

Like many Spaniards, he speaks out frankly, but not for publication.

Dionisio Ridruejo, once a Franco supporter and now an avowed opponent, has no such reservations. He has been both jailed and exiled by the Franco regime.

"We already are in the internal struggle. There is no power in Spain but the armed forces. This has been the case for 30 years. The army will referee the future," he says.

Ridruejo's break with Franco has reduced him to a simple, sparse life in Madrid. His position contrasts with colleagues who have stayed with Franco.

Ridruejo's story in some ways is a miniature reflection of the Franco years: troublemakers do not prosper; too much ambition is dangerous and support for the principles established by the general must be followed to the letter.

One of the themes pronounced by the government is that Franco has brought the country "30 years of peace" and prosperity.

There is little doubt that Spain has recovered from national poverty at the end of the civil war. But the price has been paid in part by the jailing of thousands of political opponents and the loss to other countries of such men as Picasso and Casals.

Franco began easing up, slowly and slightly, after the war ended in 1939. He re-established the Cortes as a rubber stamp parliament in 1942. Although only 20 per cent of its membership is elected, and even then under tight control, the Cortes produces debate.

In 1953, Franco and the U.S. government signed an agreement permitting U.S. military bases in Spain. With U.S. approval, the doors to other countries opened. Admission to the United Nations followed in 1955.

In 1966, Franco permitted religious freedom for Protestants in Catholic Spain for the first time during his regime. He softened censorship of the press. Spain, in the '60s, began to move toward Europe, although it remained out of NATO and the Common Market.

But beyond these changes, the rules for political activism outside the regime have changed little since the Civil War. There are no genuine political parties, no free trade unions and no uncensored press. Everything the government thinks could poison the people against the regime is carefully screened before it comes into Spain. Strikes are illegal. Meetings of more than 19 persons are not permitted unless authorized in advance by the Interior Ministry.

Franco still holds all the important jobs in the country: head of state, head of the armed forces, head of the Movement which is the country's only political funnel, and head of the government. "Francisco Franco, caudillo of Spain by the grace of God," is printed on every coin.

His appointive powers are vast. It is a rule of thumb that nobody can get ahead in Spain and be openly against his government.

Oppositionists have found the regime intransigent. The government remains strongly anti-Communist despite openings in recent years to the East.

Much of the real liberalization in Spain has come from the outside, from the millions of tourists who began moving into the country in the 1960s. Tourism, with more than 26 million visitors in 1971, now is the country's No. 1 industry.

Besides the dollars, kroners, pounds, francs and pesos, came the miniskirt, the bikini, women in bars, talk of French movies and the consumer society.

In the 1960s also came the technocrats. They moved into the government, concentrating on integrating Spain into Europe and beefing up the economy. They also brought in a new political force, Opus Dei (God's Work).

Franco himself seems mellowed. He devotes less time to government. He holds two audiences—civilian and military—weekly, but leaves much of the day-to-day operations of government to conservative Adm. Luis Carrero Blanco, 67, the man with most longevity in Cabinet outside of Franco.

Until 1969, Franco balanced forces within the country, playing off monarchists, falangists, liberals, militarists and careerists against each other. Behind it all, stood the power of the Franco army.

With the arrival of Opus Dei Cabinet members, a liberalization again seemed likely.

But the Burgos trial of 16 Basque extremists turned the government back to the right. Football pools, the lottery, social security and trade unions hospitalization, the knowledge that anything against public order means jail, help to keep the poor in line. Privilege and personal acquaintance with those in power still count heavily.

Franco seldom speaks publicly. When he does, he reminds Spaniards of the progress since the war and the penalties for "subversive activity." He also reminds them of his plan to continue the present form of government.

The succession plan began in 1947 with constitutional law to restore the monarchy. Franco nailed it down in 1963 by naming Juan Carlos to succeed him as chief of state when he dies or retires.

And here, according to many political experts, the plan may fall down.

The most prevalent view is that Juan Carlos, trained from youth by Franco, may not be able to hold the government together.

The prince has been a virtual prisoner with regard to political action since Franco named him as successor.

Spraying Silences Squeaking Shoes

By POLLY CRAMER
DEAR POLLY — My answer is for Sandy, who has squeaky shoes. Try a light oil, such as suggested for shavers, sewing machines and cameras. Be careful not to drip it on the shoes' uppers. Oil the EDGE of the SOLE completely from heel to toe and drip a little bit on the arch and on the spot if you know where it is. One or at the most two applications should do it. — PHYLIS
DEAR POLLY — I think Sandy could stop the squeaking in her shoes by spraying them with an all-purpose silicon lubricant. These may be bought at any auto supply store and have worked beautifully for me. — JEAN DEAR POLLY — The answer to Sandy's problem of squeaking shoes is an easy one — if you know it. I learned this answer just a few minutes before I was to be escorted down the aisle at my son's wedding. If the shoes are patent leather, just rub a bit of petroleum jelly on the part or parts that squeak. This is usually across the toes where the shoe bends, but I have been told that this also works on the soles. This is an immediate remedy as I well know. It saved a big day for me. — SARAH

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I have two pairs of black patent leather shoes that are still good except that they have lost their shine. Can someone tell me anything I can do to restore the shine? — PATRICIA
DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with hosiery manufacturers who have neither the variety nor the colors in regular hose that they have in panty hose. I have found it impossible to buy really black hose or stretch hose with demi toes. In panty hose, yes. — MARIE
DEAR MARIE — heartily agree with you. I do not like to wear panty hose and dark opaque colors are very hard, if not impossible, to buy in regular hose. — POLLY

It Takes More Than Money To Survive In Megapolis

By LOUISE COOK
NEW YORK (AP) — It takes more than money to survive in the megapolis these days. Urban living requires an unbreakable pair of rose-colored glasses and the ability to see a silver lining in every cloud. Suppose, for example, there's a transit strike. The average man would grumble something about the traffic and complain about not being able to get to work. Not the urbanite. A little simple reasoning—some might call it twisted logic—and the city dweller looks on the bright side: the extra exercise of walking is good for him, no buses means less pollution, the strike provides a built-in excuse for not visiting his mother-in-law in Brooklyn.

With a little practice, anyone anywhere can play the optimist's game.
Power blackout? Candles are much more romantic than electric light.
Television set on the blink? Now's the time for all that reading you say you never can get to.
Just been mugged? Relax for a while; chances are you're safe for at least a week.
Can't afford a European vacation? You won't wind up on a hijacked plane.
Cigarette taxes up again? You've been meaning to quit smoking anyway.
Telephone not working? The bill collector can't call.
Car stolen? You won't be contributing to pollution.
No trees and grass? No leaves to rake or lawn to mow.
Medical bills piling up? Think of next year's income tax deduction.
Too many crowds? A perfect opportunity for making new friends.
No place for the kids to play? They can do their homework.
Can't find a bigger apartment? You don't have to buy more furniture.
Boss turn you down for a raise? You're helping fight inflation.
Can't afford that fancy French restaurant? The food's too rich for your figure anyway.
Apartment robbed? Now you can collect on that insurance policy you've been paying for all these years. Maybe.
Too noisy to sleep late? Look at all you can get accomplished early in the morning. Tired of being an optimist? Complain a little. It'll do you good.

Ted Lightner invented the Lightner slam double a long time ago. It is a fine bid, but the all bids, whether good, bad or indifferent, it is frequently abused.

East's double clearly called for a lead of a heart, the suit bid by dummy. If East had kept still, West would probably have opened a spade—the unbid suit. South would have to take an immediate finesse and could complain about bad luck.
It wasn't difficult. Just a matter of counting to 12 tricks by means of a play known as a dummy reversal.
West continued with hearts. South ruffed and played the ace of diamonds and a diamond to the king. When both opponents followed, he was ready

Mountain Climbers
TOKYO (UPI) — Flabby tourists with fat wallets today can tread trails in the mighty Himalayas that once were reserved for the world's best mountain climbers.
The Japanese investors have opened a tourist hotel in Nepal near the foot of 29,028-foot high Mt. Everest, the world's highest peak.
A room and two meals a day at the "Everest View Hotel" costs $39 per person. Thoughtfully, the Japanese have installed an oxygen cylinder in each room for guests who have trouble breathing at the hotel's 12,600-foot elevation.
The hotel sits on a hill overlooking the Nepalese town of Namche Bazaar, traditional jumping off point for Everest climbers. It opened in autumn 1971 and had about 120 guests before winter set in. This year its manager expects more than 2,000. The peak seasons are April and November when the Himalayan weather is at its best. The hotel makes guides available to help serious climbers.

to complete the dummy reversal.
He ruffed another heart in his hand and entered dummy with the queen of clubs. Then he ruffed dummy's last heart with his last trump, entered dummy with the ace of spades, discarded his last spade on dummy's last trump. Then the clubs.
It should be noted that South would have had to fall back on the spade finesse if trumps had broken 4-1 and that he only committed himself to the dummy reversal play after he had checked the trump suit.

Players Vote To Start Strike Saturday

Ali Is Unanimous Decision Winner

Player Release Tough Situation

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Chuck Tanner was headed for his office in the clubhouse when Joe Horlen fell in beside him.

"Will it be okay for me to ship my car north?" the veteran right-hander asked the Chicago White Sox manager.

"C'mon in," invited Chuck Tanner. "We'll talk about it."

This was Monday at Saratoga, Fla., where the White Sox are in training. The squad was to be cut that day and even though his name already had been inked in as the starting pitcher that day against Pittsburgh's "B" team, Joe Horlen had this peculiar disquieting feeling.

Only five years ago he had been right up there. One of the American League's top pitchers. His 2.06 ERA had led all pitchers in 1967 and that year he not only won 19 and lost only 7, but pitched a no-hitter, paced the league with six shutouts and was named to the all-star team.

All that seemed a long time ago. More so perhaps because of a 6-15 record in 1970 followed by an 8-9 showing this past season.

Joe Horlen will be 35 this summer and nobody has to draw any pictures for him. He put in 11 years with the White Sox and was actually the senior man with them. He knows they're going with the kids now.

When he walked into Chuck Tanner's office Monday, he saw Roland Hemond there. Roland Hemond is the director of player personnel with the White Sox and he's the one who does the work. He was on the phone when Horlen came in.

"You see, Joe, Roland is on the phone trying his best to make a deal for you right now," Tanner explained, and Horlen nodded. "He has called most of the clubs and is calling the others now, but if he can't make a deal..." and here the White Sox manager hesitated a second..." then we'll have to put you on waivers."

Joe Horlen knew what that meant. Waivers for the purpose of granting him his unconditional release.

Roland Hemond kept trying on the phone. But all the people he called had their own problems. They were cutting players, too.

"...we'll get back to you by noon, but if you don't hear from us by then, go ahead and do what you have to do..."

"...we might have a spot for him, but I've gotta talk with my manager first..."

Chuck Tanner had to return to the field. Joe Horlen went out there also. He was listed to pitch, he'd pitch. He worked two innings and wasn't scored on. Later on he passed Tanner in the dugout before changing into his street clothes.

"I'll be at Howard Johnson's until 6 o'clock," he said to the manager. "You can reach me there if you hear anything."

Following the ball game, Hemond told Tanner:

"I've exhausted every possible effort, and I didn't have any luck at all."

So the White Sox finally asked waivers on Joe Horlen for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

The White Sox played 12 innings that day and lost. Tanner was in his office after the ball game when the club's equipment man came in and said to him:

"Horlen's out there."

Tanner dropped what he was doing to go out and see Horlen, but the pitcher already was gone.

"I guess he just left," said the equipment man.

The White Sox manager returned to his office and sat there all by himself for a long time. He sat there thinking about a number of things.

He thought about Joe Horlen, and how hard, brutally hard, it had been telling him; he thought about the times he himself had been cut as a ballplayer; he thought about

Richie Allen; he thought about his 18-year-old son back home in New Castle, Pa., who was facing an operation, a very delicate operation, and later he thought about Joe Horlen some more.

Chuck Tanner sat there in his undershirt, alone, without moving a muscle. He sat there thinking... thinking... thinking.

In a little while, the tears began to form around his eyes.

U.S., Chinese Match Sold Out

DETROIT (AP) — The April 14 match between the Chinese and American table tennis teams in Detroit is a sellout, sponsors of the event announced Friday.

The 28-member Chinese team, currently on a 10-day tour of Canada, is expected to begin its two-week tour of the United States on April 10.

In addition to the firm Detroit commitment, tentative plans call for matches in New York, Washington and Los Angeles. A definite itinerary is expected to be announced within the next several days, according to Graham Steenhoven, president of the U.S. Table Tennis Association.

Steenhoven and a team of USTA players visited China last April—the first in a series of diplomatic overtures that led to President Nixon's trip to Peking.

GAMES POSTPONED

Jacksonville High School's opening baseball weekend was postponed Friday due to the inclement weather. The Crimson were slated to entertain Lockport Central Friday and visit Normal for a twinbill Saturday.

TOKYO (AP) — Former world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali, in complete command with his flashy, dancing style, hammered Mac Foster with jolting left jabs and won a unanimous 15-round decision Saturday.

There were no knockdowns in the fight.

American referee J. E. Crowder scored it 73-65 for Ali. Japanese judge Takeo Ugo had it 75-67 and judge Hiroyuki Tezaki of Japan tabbed it 74-65. The Associated Press scored it 73-64.

All acted disgusted at the end of the fifth round when he failed to fulfill his prediction of a fifth-round knockout. There were some boos then, and also at the end of the fight, from the near capacity crowd in the 14,500-seat Martial Arts Hall.

The outcome was never in doubt as Ali flicked in sharp left jabs almost at will and never appeared bothered by Foster's punches. Foster's eyes were swollen and a few times he seemed to be dazed by Ali's sharp hitting.

All weighed 226, Foster 211½.

Warriors Attempt Comeback

OAKLAND (AP) — Jim Barnett said it best after the Golden State Warriors were out-rebounded, out-run and out-scored 118-93 by the Milwaukee Bucks in the second game of the Western Conference playoffs.

"It seemed like both teams had switched uniforms from the other night," Barnett said after the defending National Basketball Association champions humiliated the Warriors Thursday night.

"This was the exact opposite of the first game."

Barnett, who scored 30 points during the Warriors' 117-106 triumph Tuesday night, could manage only 10 points Thursday in Milwaukee.

Saturday night the Warriors and Barnett will try here to rebuild some pride and jump ahead again in the best-of-7 game series.

But Bucks Coach Larry Costello is confident his squad, led by Kareem-Abdul Jabbar, can continue to win.

"What it comes down to is pride," he said. "We could have been down three in a row and come back and win four. I'm not saying we would have, but we could have."

After being out-rebounded by eight in the opener, the Bucks came back for a 57-45 rebounding advantage that shut off Barnett and Golden State's running game. Jabbar scored 25 points and grabbed 22 rebounds, while his Golden State counterpart Nate Thurmond had 32 points and 18 rebounds.

Shooting 66.7 per cent from the floor, the Bucks took a 54-47 lead at the half, stretched that lead to 90-67 and pulled away to 110-79 with 5:34 left to play.

After evening the series 1-1, Costello said he believed Barnett "was back to his normal game. That's what I think. He's not a 30-point player—not even against older men."

"If Costello had that to say," Barnett said later, "he'd better realize tonight's performance wasn't my game either. I like to think there's something in between for all of us."

Rookie Erving Leads Virginia Over Floridians

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Rookie Julius Erving scored six points in overtime Friday night to spark the Virginia Squires to a 114-107 victory over the Floridians in the opening game of their semifinal American Basketball Association Eastern Division semifinal playoff.

The second game of the best-of-7 series will be played Saturday at Hampton, Va., with the third and fourth games scheduled for Miami.

The Floridians, who trailed most of the second half, finally knotted the score at 99-all on a jump shot by Willie Long with 45 seconds remaining.

Virginia then took possession, and Warren Jaball missed a chance to win it for the Floridians in regulation time when he missed a short jumper with three seconds to go.

DALLAS: Reggie Jackson, players representative for the Oakland Athletics, talks with Marvin Miller (l.), executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, after baseball players association voted unanimously Friday in Dallas to strike against major league baseball effective with exhibition games scheduled for Saturday.

Hawks Even Series Behind Hudson's 41

ATLANTA (AP) — Lou Hudson poured in 41 points Friday night to lead the Atlanta Hawks to a 113-104 victory over the Boston Celtics, squaring their National Basketball Association first-round playoff series at one game apiece.

It was Atlanta's first victory over the Celtics this season, following five straight defeats, four during the regular season.

The third game of this Eastern Conference semifinal playoff will be in Boston Sunday.

Atlanta, which never trailed after taking a 41-40 lead in the second quarter, put the game on ice in the final four minutes after Boston, behind the hot shooting of John Havlicek, chopped the advantage to 97-93.

Baskets by Jim Washington, George Trapp and Hudson pushed the Hawk lead to 11 points with slightly more than two minutes remaining, and Boston never got closer than seven the rest of the way.

Hudson had 21 points in the opening half and 20 in the second.

Havlicek, hitting from all over the court, led all scorers with 43 points, 23 of them in the second half.

Richie Shows Up

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) —

Richie Allen, the recalcitrant outfielder who sat out spring training while his fellow Chicago White Sox toiled, showed up for contract talks Friday just hours after his peers voted to walk out of camp.

Allen talked for about an hour with Stu Holcomb, executive vice president of the club, and said he would continue negotiations Saturday.

It was Allen's second appearance in camp. Allen met with Holcomb for about 15 minutes March 14 and then walked out of camp, saying he and Holcomb were "miles away" on reaching agreement on a contract figure.

The slugging outfielder was acquired from the Los Angeles

Dodgers during the winter.

After their first meeting, Holcomb said Allen was offered the highest salary figure in the history of the White Sox, but that Allen wanted more and asked to be traded. The figure reportedly was $125,000.

If he signs, Allen will presumably start working out with the White Sox' minor league complex in Sarasota.

"Wouldn't you know it," Holcomb said, smiling at the irony of Allen's appearance in camp. "All the players are on strike and now Richie might start working out."

The Major League Baseball Players Association Friday voted 47-0 to strike against the two leagues starting Saturday in a dispute over the players' pension fund.

Disbelief, Disgust Greet Strike Vote

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Disbelief, disappointment and disgust greeted the announcement Friday of an intended strike by the Major League Baseball Players Association.

"I can't believe it," said Boston Red Sox infielder Danny Cater. "I never thought it would come to this."

"We're just sick about the strike vote," said Stu Holcomb, executive vice president of the Chicago White Sox.

Carlton Fisk, a rookie catcher who made the big time with the Boston Red Sox this spring, grimaced when he learned of the strike vote before a night exhibition game with the Detroit Tigers at Lakeland, Fla. He made no comment—just threw up his head in disgust.

Their reactions came shortly after the association announced at a meeting in Dallas that it would strike against major league owners Saturday for better pension benefits for the players.

Holcomb said the White Sox are "closing up. There will be no more practice sessions, no games, no ticket sales, no nothing."

"I thought we had a better rapport with our players than this but I guess that just doesn't matter now."

Holcomb said his team would probably give the players money to get home, but added: "If I had my way, they wouldn't get anything."

Jim Campbell, the general manager of the Detroit Tigers, said: "We're closing down. The players have been told to clean out their lockers and take their equipment. The clubhouse will be locked and the facilities closed to all players. We'll furnish them transportation home, if they want it."

A spokesman for the Red Sox said: "As of midnight, the players are on their own. The motel rooms of the players are paid through tonight. That's it."

"Obviously, the losers in the strike action taken tonight are the sports fans of America," said Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "Beyond that, I will have no statement to make at this time."

WESLEYAN BEATEN 4-1 JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Freshman Sam Sawyer, making his first collegiate appearance, scattered four hits as Jackson State defeated Illinois Wesleyan 4-1 in college baseball Friday.

Give Owners Two Walkout Escapes

DALLAS (AP) — Major league baseball players made good on their strike threat Friday and called a walkout to begin Saturday. It could delay next week's scheduled opening of the 1972 season.

The first full-scale strike in baseball history was ordered by a 47-0 vote of player representatives and their alternates following a 4½-hour meeting with Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association. There was one abstention.

The disagreement between the players and club owners is over pension benefits. The players felt they had to stand strong in the face of a recent statement by August A. Busch Jr., president of the St. Louis Cardinals, that the owners would not contribute "another damn cent" to the pension plan.

Saturday's 12 scheduled exhibition games were called off "unless resolution of the dispute is reached," Miller said. Among the casualties was a charity contest between the Baltimore Orioles and Atlanta Braves in Birmingham, Ala., that would have raised $30,000 for crippled children.

"We are closing up," said Stu Holcomb, executive vice president of the Chicago White Sox. "There will be no more practice sessions, no games, no ticket sales, no nothing. I thought we had a better rapport with our players than this, but I guess that just doesn't matter now. They have a lawyer (Miller) working for them and they just follow whatever he tells them to do."

Gary Peters, player representative of the Boston Red Sox, said the players "were forced into doing what we did. If we had gone any other way it would have ruined our association. We would like to think that the owners will believe we are serious now."

"We went over every one of the alternatives. He (Miller) said there were a lot of questions concerning the average fan. There will be a lot of pressure on the ballplayers from the fans, but we don't think they've ever been fully informed of what we are up against."

Peters had been instructed by his teammates to vote for a mid-May strike rather than an immediate one. The Red Sox were one of the few teams that didn't vote unanimously for the strike. The overall vote to authorize a strike was 66-10 with two abstentions.

Miller said the strike could be terminated only in either of the following circumstances:

1. If a settlement is reached with the owners.

2. If the owners agree to submit the dispute to binding arbitration by any prominent person not associated with either side.

Miller said he talked with John Gaherin, representative of the owners, and told him of the strike action.

"He indicated he would like to see me tomorrow (Saturday) morning in New York," Miller said. "If I can get transportation, I will meet him either in my office or his office."

In New York, Gaherin said it was the owners' intention "to continue to talk with the association in good faith in the hope that this dispute can be speedily resolved."

It was not immediately known what the striking players would do on Saturday.

In New York, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said: "Obviously, the losers in the strike action taken tonight are the sports fans of America. Beyond that, I have no comment at this time."

Greensboro 2nd Round Halted By Rain, Cold

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Rain and cold forced postponement of the second round of the $200,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament Friday.

An 18-hole round was scheduled for Saturday, but beyond that the format for the 72-hole tournament was in doubt.

Officials have the option of playing a double round Sunday or single 18-hole rounds Sunday and Monday.

It is possible to extend the tournament through Tuesday.

The extended weather forecast calls for the possibility of rain through Monday.

Friday's scheduled second round was called off early in the morning when heavy, overnight rains made the Sedgwick Country Club course unplayable. Only three or four groups had started when play was halted.

The course was hit with a three-inch snow last weekend, then drenched with rain Wednesday. A steady, overnight rain Thursday turned into squall-like rain Friday morning. Some light snow was mixed with the rain Friday morning. The temperature was in the high 30s.

Veterans Julius Boros and Miller Barber, along with J. C. Snead, shared the first round lead with five-under-par 66s. Another half dozen players, headed by Australian Bruce Crampton, followed at 67.

Lee Trevino had a first-round 68, Arnold Palmer and Tony Jacklin of England had 69s. Gary Player of South Africa opened with a 70 and Billy Casper matched par 71.

Four players withdrew. They were amateur Dale Morey, who had an opening 70, Bob Rosburg, 75, Peter Townsend, 78, and Marty Fleckman, 79.

Bullets Keep Hex On Knicks 108-105

BALTIMORE (AP) — Archie Clark and Jack Marin sank two free throws each in the final 39 seconds of overtime to give Baltimore a 108-105 victory over the New York Knicks in the opening game of the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference semifinal playoffs Friday night.

Clark, who scored five of his 38 points in overtime, put the Bullets ahead with two free throws with 39 seconds left. Marin added his pair with three seconds remaining after a desperation foul by Phil Jackson.

A basket by the Knicks' Bill Bradley from the top of the key with 10 seconds left in regulation time sent the game into the five-minute extra period.

It was the sixth consecutive playoff victory for Baltimore over the Knicks during the past three seasons. The two teams are opposing each other in post-season play for the fourth consecutive year.

Walt Frazier led New York with 31 points while also handing off six assists and grabbing 11 rebounds—three less than center Jerry Lucas. Dave DeBusschere scored 24 points for New York and Dick Barnett had 17.

Jack Marin scored 26 for Baltimore. The second game of the best-of-seven series will be played in New York Sunday night.

Roy Campanella Still Critical

VALHALLA, N.Y. (AP) — Roy Campanella, Hall of Fame catcher of the old Brooklyn Dodgers whose life has been marked by tragedy, remained seriously ill and under intensive care Friday after collapsing at his home.

Suffering from a pulmonary embolism—a blood clot or air bubble in the area of his lungs—his breathing was being assisted by mechanical means at Grasslands Hospital.

An afternoon bulletin by Dr. W. R. Dalziel said:

"Roy Campanella remained conscious and alert and his condition is unchanged from this morning. He is still seriously ill. His respiratory functions are being constantly monitored and his breathing is being assisted by mechanical means."

Campanella, 50, who suffered a broken neck and paralysis of the lower limbs in an automobile accident in 1958, was stricken Thursday afternoon. A police emergency unit was rushed to his home where attendants administered oxygen. He was taken to Grasslands Hospital.

Dr. Dalziel, associate director of the hospital, said Campanella was admitted in a state of unconsciousness.

"Immediate measures were taken to revive him," an early morning hospital bulletin stated. "He regained consciousness after a very brief interval."

"Since the initial emergency measure, he has been under constant observation and treatment in the intensive care unit. His condition has improved."

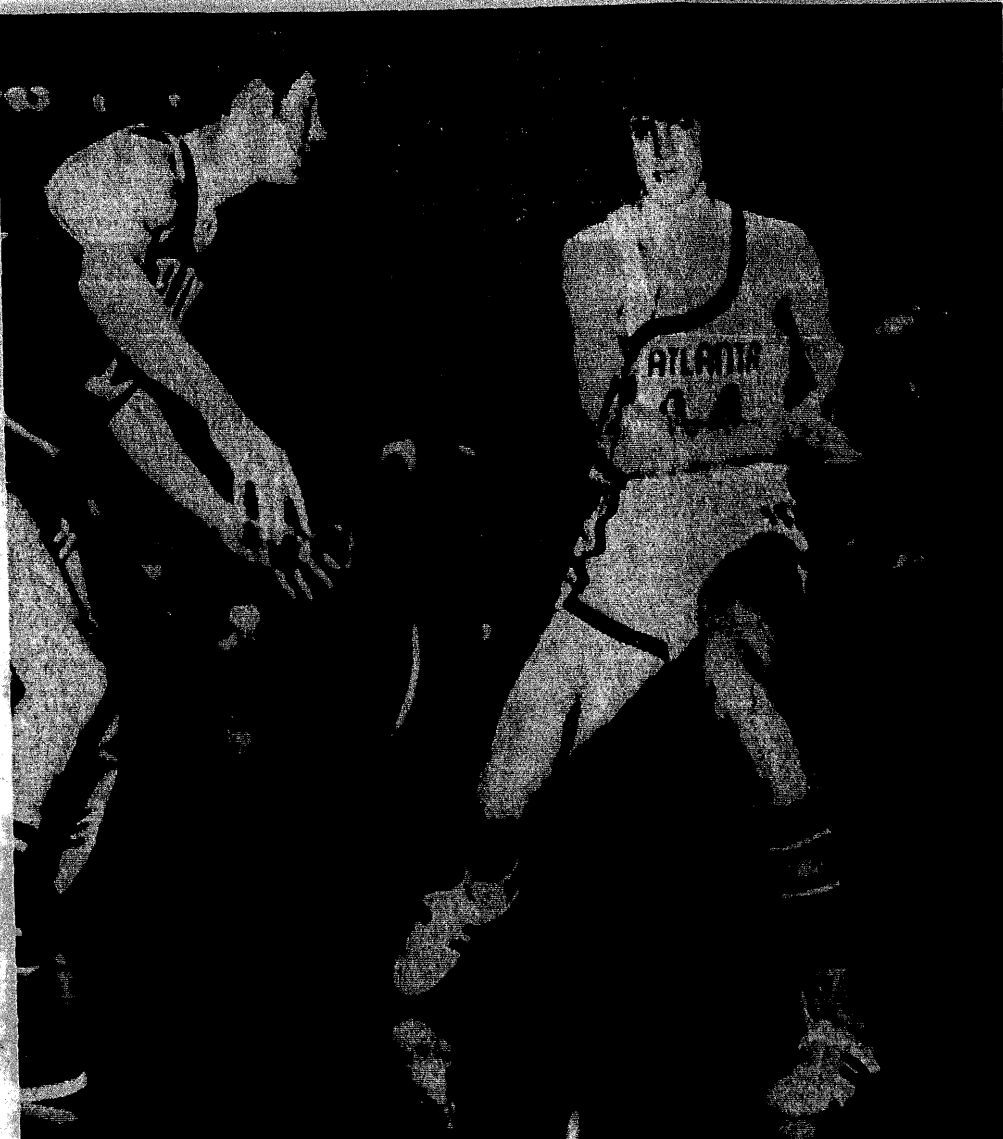

"However, the prognosis is still guarded although he is conscious and alert. All vital signs are stable and normal at present."

Campanella, the first black catcher in the major leagues, was one of the stalwarts of the great Brooklyn teams that battled the New York Yankees for baseball supremacy in the early 1950s.

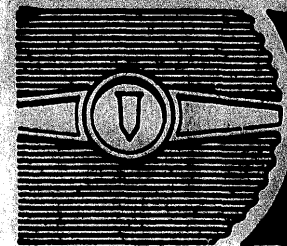

He was named the Most Valuable Player in the National League three times—1951, 1953 and 1955. In 1953, he set major league records for the most home runs, 41, and the most runs batted in, 142, by a catcher.

During his major league career, he suffered broken hands, a cracked knee cap and severe burns from a boiler explosion. On Jan. 28, 1958, his car skidded on a rain-slick road near Glen Cove, N.Y., and smashed into a telephone pole. He was left a cripple.

He was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1969.

STEERING COLUMN

By Bill Brodick

ATLANTA, Georgia — The layout is big for a garage as most people know garages. Ten thousand square feet.

And it's surgically clean. In fact, the shop resembles a hospital operating room in a grotesque sort of way, what with a dozen or so men dressed completely in white uniforms moving around with their instruments with which they stab and probe and put together the complicated innards of an Indianapolis 500 race car.

Emerging from a back room that contains the embryo of a sleek racer that less than two months from now will be screaming down the back straight of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, comes the "caudillo" of this particular motor racing enterprise.

Dressed as though he just stepped from a page of GENTLEMAN'S QUARTERLY, and bearing the deep tan that can only be obtained from the warm Georgia sun as it shines brightly on one of Atlanta's better country clubs, Gene White breaks into a friendly grin and offers a warm handshake.

Gene White, 40, of Atlanta, Georgia, is an Indianapolis race car owner. His machines are driven by the ageless Lloyd Ruby and Gale Yarborough, a former stock car driver who years for the riches that Indianapolis has to offer.

Since White began his stable of Indianapolis racers in 1967, his operation has been the elite of motorsports. First class. Nothing but the best. Unfortunately, the bug-a-boo that keeps many from savoring the sweet taste of victory has always plagued him at Indianapolis.

Gene offered many interesting comments on the 1972 Indianapolis picture, which comes into full focus on May 1st when the month-long practice session gets under way. But one observation stands out above all the others.

"There's been a rule change for the Indy 500 this year," said Gene. "All of the drivers are now required to make four pit stops. And that poses a very interesting situation.

"Do you know that the pole position winner, the guy who theoretically has the fastest car, is liable to start the race in the pits?"

We pressed Gene for an explanation.

"Look at it this way," continued White. "On qualifying day you could put on some super soft tires for adhesion—tires that would last for only enough laps that it takes to qualify. No longevity, but you could sure boost your speed. It only takes four laps to qualify, so you could really have some 'gumballs.'"

"Now the rules say you have to make four pit stops with the fuel hoses connected during each stop. You don't have to take on fuel, just hook up the hose. Fuel is only needed on three of the four stops."

"At Indianapolis they don't use the pace car to slow down and bunch up the field like they do in stock car racing or in championship racing at other tracks, so you really can't gain that much by waiting for a yellow flag before making a pit stop."

"The speed at Indy will be around 160 mph average per lap during the race. But the first lap isn't that fast. It's always slower by about 10 mph. What's to stop a driver from qualifying for the pole on super-soft tires and winning the number-one starting position and all of the money that goes with it, then pulling into the pits as the cars come down the main straight at the start to change tires. He'd be taking the green starter's flag while making one of his mandatory pit stops."

"The rules say you have to start the race on the tires you qualify on, not race any given number of laps. With the cars going 10-15 mph slower on that first lap you would have a definite advantage by making the first stop at the start. It wouldn't show up until about half-way in the race, but then look out!"

"Of course, if they would decide to use the pace car, it would change things, because then you could plan to pit on the yellow flag laps."

When Gene White talks about the start of this year's Indianapolis 500 and what might transpire, there's a gleam in his eye. He won't say what he's going to do, but he brought up a very interesting question.

Lakers In Command With 2-0 Advantage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Heading for Chicago and Sunday's third game in their best-of-7 National Basketball playoffs, the Los Angeles Lakers appear in commanding position.

They beat the Bulls once with fine defense and again when they flashed an offense and hit 59.5 per cent of their shots from the floor.

The Lakers won 95-80 in the opener and 131-124 in the second game at their home Forum before sellout crowds.

While the Los Angeles starting five appears solid physically, the Bulls have lost center Tom Boerwinkle with a knee injury and both forwards—Chet Walker and Bob Love are hurt.

Los Angeles rallied for 10 straight points, paced by Wilt Chamberlain, in that final period to win the game after falling behind.

Coach Bill Sharman still isn't overly happy with his team.

"If we're going to win, we have to play better defense," he said Thursday night. "If Chicago shoots as well at home as they did in the second game here, they'll win."

Chicago Coach Dick Motta fumed over an official's call with 1:47 left Thursday night and the score tied at 117.

Clifford Ray, the Chicago rookie replacing Boerwinkle, blocked an attempted stuff shot by Chamberlain and Mendy Rudolph called it goaltending and awarded two points to the Lakers.

There is no such thing as goaltending on a stuff shot," said Motta. "I don't understand how they can call it. That shot was the turning point of the game. The score was tied and we had the ball after the shot was blocked."

Ray said only that Rudolph told him his hand hit the rim of the basket.

The rookie scored 21 points and took 12 rebounds, but overall the rebound advantage was 49-51 in favor of Los Angeles. And the Lakers collected handsomely at the free throw line—38 for 44. They shot 49.3 per cent from the floor.

Indiana Rallies For 102-96 Edge In ABA Playoff

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Pacers came from behind in the second half, then held off a Denver rally Friday night to score a 102-96 victory in the first game of their best-of-7 American Basketball Association first round playoff series.

Denver led 49-46 at the half and scored six quick points to start the second half to take a 55-46 lead, their biggest of the game. But the Pacers dumped in nine straight points to tie the game at 55-55.

The Pacers rolled up several six-point leads late in the third period. They increased the lead to nine, 85-76, early in the fourth.

Denver charged back, taking a 90-88 lead with four minutes remaining. The score was tied twice before Freddie Lewis' layup with 2:01 remaining put the Pacers ahead 96-94.

A basket by Keller and two free throws by Roger Brown in the next minute iced the game. Brown led all scorers with 28 points followed by teammate Bob Netolicky with 24.

Denver was led by Ralph Simpson with 26 points and rookie Dave Robisch with 25.

The second game of the series will be played here Saturday night.

Assistant Hall Scheduled To Replace Rupp

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky conceded it was "no surprise to anybody" Friday when Joe B. Hall was named to succeed Adolph Rupp as head basketball coach.

Hall, 43, had been an assistant under Rupp since 1965 and for more than three years was the No. 1 Rupp aide.

He becomes head coach July 1 when the 70-year-old Rupp officially steps down.

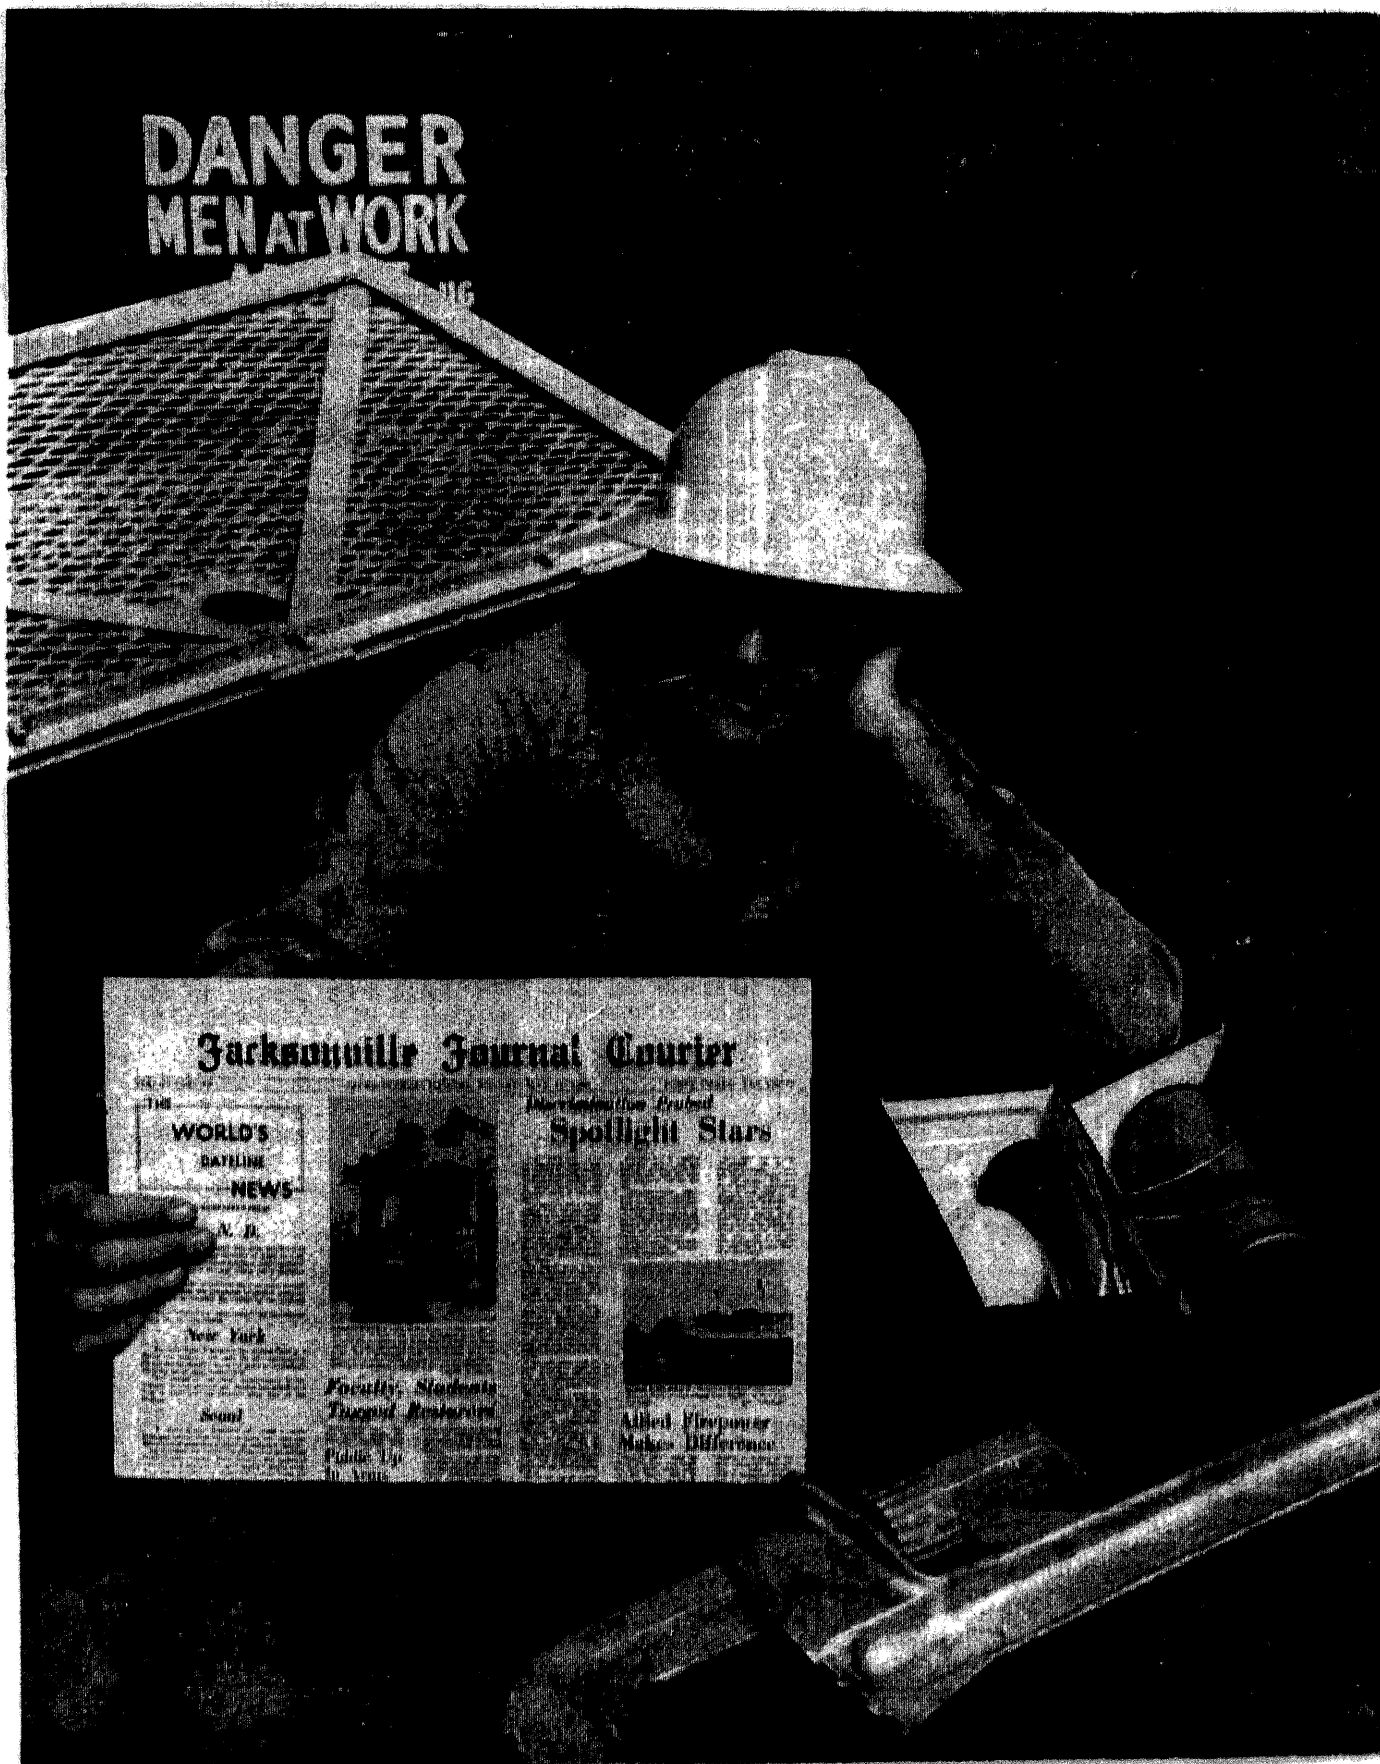

Rupp, whose teams during his 42-year tenure won more games than those of any college coach in the history of the sport, was forced into retirement last Monday by the University's Athletics Board.

To the last, Rupp fought retirement. He was not present at the news conference at which his successor was presented nor at the one at which his retirement was announced.

Hall, a graduate of the University of the South, played for Rupp one season at Kentucky.

He will coach under a four year contract of undisclosed terms.

Rules Of The Road

Rules of the road pertain to boating as well as to driving a car. Remember and observe the following rules, the Outboard Boating Club of America advises.

Check the weather before getting under way. If the sky looks threatening, don't go out.

If You Are Considering

... anything from a little two-wheel tag-along utility box to a rollin' ranchhouse—a good first step is to check your state's current legal requirements and vehicle manufacturers' requirements and recommendations.

Laws and warranty requirements are changed frequently to be kept timely in terms of product and highway development.

DON'T STORE GASOLINE in plastic bleach bottles, is the warning from P. W. Tift of Plummer, Idaho. It's dangerous! Calling attention to a suggestion for such use published in December, he notes that gasoline bleeds through or disintegrates thin-walled plastic bottles making them hazardous for storage. It's even illegal in some states, he says. If you must use a plastic container, use only those types commercially made and legally approved. The Society of Plastics Industry backs up Mr. Tift.

A WIRE COAT HANGER or two comes in handy on a camping trip, reports J. C. Meabon of Sapulpa, Okla. You can use one (the unpainted type) as a roasting fork, a tongs, even as a frying pan when bent into a circle and covered with aluminum foil. Hooked onto a tree branch, it's a towel rack or a hanger for small camp articles. AMAZING is what Francis Tenney of Adrian, West Va., calls his remedy for insect stings and bites: first apply a small amount of laundry bleach, then tie to the bite a slice of lemon sprinkled with salt. Acts within a few minutes, he says.

WHEN you paint the inside of your small fishing boat this spring, sprinkle some fine, clean sand on the wet paint, suggests Charles Gruentzel of Gillett, Wis. It will dry like sandpaper and prevent your feet from slipping when you move around.

IF YOU should suffer a cut or bad scratch in the woods and have no first-aid kit, find a standing balsam fir, pierce one of its blisters and apply the sap to the wound, suggests Ilmer Salo of Mt. Iron, Minn. He says the wound will heal quickly; he's been using this remedy for 20 years with success.

FOR A BACKPACKER three empty coffee cans — a one-pound, two-pound and three-pound — make a handy set of nesting cooking pots, easy to carry, reports E. E. Starr of Williams, Ariz. To protect the insides, put each in a plastic bag before nesting them. Discard in a proper place.

MAKE your own camp toaster, designed by Alvin Manchester of Ord, Neb. Cut a one-pound coffee can in half. Punch some holes in the bottom with a beer-can opener to let in the heat from your stove, lay some wire across the top to hold the bread slices, use a low flame.

Remember Load Capacity

The load capacity of a boat trailer is the total weight of boat, motor and gear that can be carried by the trailer. It is important not to exceed this total weight when preparing to trail a boat.

Boaters who place luggage, camping equipment and other supplies in a boat must consider such equipment part of the trailer load. Such gear should be well distributed and secured to prevent shifting or bouncing.

Manufacturers indicate this load capacity on plates attached to trailers or in literature available through dealers.

Crappie Fishing . . . Simple And Easy

Let's Talk Bass

One day in 1896, James Heddon sat whittling on the banks of Dowagiac Creek in Michigan. He tossed the piece of wood on which he had been working into the creek and watched it float away. Suddenly the stick disappeared in a splash of water, then bobbed up again. A big bass had struck at the wood, then ejected it.

Heddon mused over the experience and later whittled a torpedo-shaped cedar bait. A metal bottle cap went over its head and hooks were attached. He fished the lure by casting out and retrieving. Heddon caught bass, lots of them, and big.

That was the birth of black bass fishing as it has been practiced in America for nearly three-quarters of a century. Ever since Jim Heddon first cast that crudely shaped plug, bass fishing has been America's number one inland rod and reel sport.

Partly due to their distribution, partly to their gaminess, bass are the fish most sought by the nation's fishermen. While originally confined to the central states, the South, and the East, bass now live in some waters of each state. They are as American as Huckleberry Finn.

Their adaptability to new waters and ability to withstand extreme temperature variations and turbidity make bass the country's most plentiful fresh water game fish. Regardless of where you wander you are never far from some river, lake, pond, or stream capable of providing bass.

For most anglers the largemouth bass is the most important species, followed by the smallmouth and finally the spotted, or Kentucky bass. They are the "Big Three" of the sunfish family, for it is within this group that bass belong. This same family includes bluegills, rock bass, crappies, and many other fish.

The largemouth, called "linesides," "mosback," "Oswego," "big mouths," "green sunfish," or "green trout," has the broadest distribution. Though predominantly a southern and Middle Atlantic states fish, it is fairly plentiful in most areas. In fresh waters of the Deep South, the largemouth is without peer.

The smallmouth bass, more demanding of environment than its bigmouth brother, has a more limited range and is not quite so abundant. The "bronzeback," as it is often called, requires sweeter, purer, cooler water. The smallmouth often exists in waters teeming with clean-living trout.

In Maine and Canada smallmouths are chiefly lake dwellers, but in the Middle West and in the Ozark Hills "bronzeback" is a riffle-runner, inhabiting countless small, swift-flowing rivers and creeks.

The spotted bass was identified years ago by one naturalist, but only recently has it been properly recognized and identified. It is more nearly a smallmouth than a largemouth. It is chiefly a southern fish (fairly abundant in the Tennessee Lakes) but is found from Ohio and West Virginia to Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas, and eastward to Florida.

The beginning Crappie fisherman should know that the Crappie is a member of the sunfish family, which also includes the largemouth, smallmouth, spotted, rock and warmouth basses; the bluegill, pumpkinseed, longear, redear, redbreast, spotted and green sunfishes.

There are two species, the white crappie (pomoxis annularis) and the black crappie (pomoxis nigromaculatus). The world records, respectively, are five pounds and five pounds, three ounces. Both fish closely resemble each other. The state of Illinois record for black crappie is four pounds, four ounces. The largest white crappie caught in Illinois weighed four pounds, five ounces.

Crappies are found throughout the eastern half of the United States and in southern Canada. They can be found almost anywhere in the state of Illinois. The crappie live mostly around brushy cover, lily pads, weed beds, moss, fallen trees, and brush piles. At times they roam the open water in large schools, usually pursuing their favorite food, fish minnows. REMEMBER, crappies are a schooling fish. When you find one, you find more. And, they eat almost constantly. When they consume all the food in one area, they move to another. So, they just keep eating and moving.

For the beginner crappie fishing can be simple and still produce nice catches. All you need is a ten-foot cane pole (lightweight) and tied to the tip a ten-foot length of six-pound monofilament line. At the end of the line tie on a No. 4 hook (a fine wire hook). About six inches above the hook, attach a tiny split-shot sinker to the line. One foot above this, fasten a lightweight bobber. Most crappie fishermen prefer the pencil type bobber of the very lightest weight.

Now all you need is an inexpensive minnow bucket full of small minnows and a nearby lake with crappies in it. Remember, hooking the minnow is important. One way you can hook the minnow is through both lips, but use care not to pierce the brain or you'll kill the minnow. Another popular way is in the meat of the tail, which will insure a live active minnow. Also remember, when a crappie takes your minnow, don't pull up too hard or you'll tear the tender mouth of the crappie and lose it.

In the Jacksonville area you'll find some good crappie fishing closeby. Crappies abound in Lake Mauvaisterre, Lake Jacksonville, and the Waverly reservoir. Anywhere you catch them, crappies are a lot of fun and about the nearest thing to everybody's fish you could ask for. Clean them as soon as possible, and you'll find this is one of the easiest of all fish to scale. Roll them in flour and corn meal, fry to a golden brown, and you'll suddenly see why there are so many crappie fishermen.

Fish With Light Drag

More fish are lost by the use of too much drag than for any other single reason. Most fishermen set the drag too tight to start with or fail to check it before fishing, only to find when a fish hits that there is no resiliency to take up the extra force of the strike, and the line snaps.

The safe way is to set a light drag in advance, then add more pressure after the fish has been securely hooked. Even then, a light drag is more desirable than a heavy one because even such long-distance sprinters as the bonefish and Atlantic salmon will tire themselves out in extended runs.

All the angler needs is sufficient tension to put the pressure on once the fish has stopped its run, and then to get it coming his way. Then if the prey decides to run again, the drag is still light enough to allow him to do so without endangering the line or leader. Try it—lighter drag, more fish.

Fish Has Last Word

If you're a "minnow man," don't scorn the fisherman who snaps an artificial lure on his line.

The chances are, he's catching largemouth as fast as you are. And, he may even take more lunkers.

The controversy of live versus artificial bait has ranged ever since an early-day "cane poler" ran out of crawdads. One story has it he ripped off a piece of his brightly colored shirt-tail and baited up, proceeding to astound his fellow anglers.

Thus began a dispute that has split the fishing fraternity into two warring factions. Ask the man who dunks a worm or helgrammite what he thinks about plug casters and he's likely to flip the lid clean off his bait bucket. The advocate of artificials holds his adversary in about equal contempt.

Actually, both methods catch fish. But man-made lures enjoy a better than 2-1 edge in effectiveness. This was found when scientists in Illinois conducted a survey to determine which technique caught the most fish. Artificials proved far superior, both in numbers and in size.

The style of fishing probably accounts for this wide difference. In casting, a man covers a lot of territory and exposes his lure to many fish. Live bait angling, on the other hand is much more restrictive, depending mainly upon fish movement, but deadly when fish are finally located.

The wise fisherman would do well to use both methods, trying plugs first, then switching to bait if fishing's poor. After all, the final choice is up to the bass. Science has not yet been able to direct the whims and fancies of a largemouth.

Armed Bandits Rob Kroger Manager

Two bandits held the manager of the Kroger Co. store, 340 W. College Ave., at gunpoint and escaped with a large amount of cash about noon Friday.

Although police chief Charles P. Runkel refused to disclose the amount of money stolen, it was believed to have been several thousand dollars.

Detective James Potter gave the following account of the robbery.

The store manager, Erwin Fischer, drove into the store's parking lot with the money which he had withdrawn from the bank, probably to use in cashing customer payroll checks. Fischer became suspicious of two men standing in the parking lot, locked the money in the car and went into the store to get an employee, William Ford, to assist him.

Fischer and Ford then went to the car and took the money out after failing to spot the suspicious men. As they took the cash from the car, two men armed with handguns grabbed the loot and ran north.

The robbers were described as white, in their early 20's. One was about six feet tall, around 185 pounds and wearing a striped mackinaw jacket. The other was said to be about five feet, eleven inches, wearing a brown trench coat. Both had long brown hair and wore sunglasses.

Detective Potter said Friday night he was making definite progress in his investigation. He said several witnesses provided many leads that he was working on.

Potter said he would talk to employees of Joe's Bi-Rite food store in Roodhouse to see if there was a connection between Friday's robbery and an armed robbery there last Saturday night. A lone gunman robbed the Roodhouse store of about $4,000 and escaped on foot.

Although many local merchants routinely request police escorts when transporting large amounts of cash, Potter said he could not recall Fischer ever doing so.

Constitutional Action Group Honors Findley

WASHINGTON — Representative Paul Findley (R-Ill.) has just received the sixth biennial "Distinguished Service Award" given by Americans for Constitutional Action. The award, in the form of a beautifully inscribed burgundy and gold plaque, is given "for a notable voting record in the Congress of the United States (during the period from 1961 to 1970) in support of those legislative measures which would serve to sustain, strengthen and defend the spirit and principles of the Constitution of the United States as these were defined by the Founding Fathers of our Republic."

The plaque was presented to Congressman Findley by ACA's president Charles A. McManus. Acknowledging his gratitude for the award, which he has received regularly ever since coming to Congress, Congressman Findley reviewed some of his recent activities to strengthen basic constitutional principles.

"The power of the sword is one of the two great responsibilities which the Constitution gives to the Congress, and throughout most of this century Congress has failed to use it. Early in this Congress, I drafted the section of bill which requires the President of the United States to report immediately to Congress any time he commits U.S. military troops to foreign territory without prior Congressional approval. That bill has now been passed by the House and hearings have been held in the Senate.

"Another great power committed by the Constitution to the Congress is the power of the purse. With a projected $25 billion deficit for next year following the current deficit of $40 billion, it can hardly be said that Congress has fulfilled its responsibility to guard and administer the public's purse.

"That is why I offered an amendment to cut the legislative appropriation bill by 14 percent last week; and when the amendment failed, I voted against the bill.

"In the coming weeks, I will offer a similar amendment to cut each appropriation bill by 14 percent. If such fiscal responsibility were to be applied across the board, the federal budget would be balanced next year.

"In my view, the Congress must act decisively to regain control over basic constitutional responsibilities. The power of the purse and the power of the sword are two good places to begin."

Special Guests At Pilot Club Program Here

Guests from this city and Springfield joined members of the Pilot club of Jacksonville in a "Share Pilot" dinner meeting Wednesday, March 22, at the Beef and Bird.

Planned by the membership and Pilot information committee made up of Mrs. Reid Lasey and Mrs. Donald Wood, chairman, the tables were decorated in Pilot colors of green and gold with flowers, candles and the Pilot wheel. Invocation was given by club chaplain Mrs. Loralee Huber, followed by the pledge of allegiance led by patriotic emblems chairman Miss Louise Bancroft.

Mrs. C. Y. Rowe, club president, gave the official welcome and called for classification of members and introduction of guests. These were Mrs. Eunice Scott, president of the Pilot club of Springfield; Mrs. Walter Cloyd, past district lieutenant governor and past Extension chairman; Mrs. Jack Stevens, past district governor; Mrs. Marie Lenz, past president of the Pilot club of Springfield; Mrs. Ken Keller, all of Springfield. Jacksonville guests were Miss Rowena Hubbard, Mrs. Kenneth Mangan, Miss Diane Peters, Mrs. Harry R. Smith, and Mrs. Max Thompson.

Mrs. Wood, chairman of the evening, explained "Share Pilot" meetings are a Pilot International project used throughout the country and abroad during this 50th anniversary year to tell the story of Pilot.

Mrs. Arthur Samore opened the program with a resume of the activities of the Pilot club of Jacksonville during its 20 years of existence, stressing that the club's purpose is to be of service to the community. She touched on past and present volunteer services and on the participation of club members in district and international offices and committee work.

Some of the international projects which Jacksonville Pilots support financially were described by Mrs. Mildred Hill, chairman of education and international relations. She told of the work being done by the ship S.S. HOPE on which Pilots furnished, equipped and maintained the pediatric ward. She also told of the help given by Pilot to CARE, Inc., in the building of schools and libraries in underdeveloped countries.

Community work was outlined by Mrs. R. J. Kaufmann, Sr., community service chairman, who told of monthly volunteer service at Passavant hospital gift shop, solicitation for Salvation Army Tree of Lights, and the Easter Seal mailing. Mrs. Kaufmann gave the details of the latter work in the preparation of 11,000 envelopes for mailing and paid tribute to the County Clerk's office, the City Water Department, and the South Jacksonville Water Department for their cooperation in this project.

Continuing the emphasis on community service, Mrs. Milton Stout, tree chairman, stated that trees on the city boulevards are not planted for ourselves but for posterity, to continue the good work which has begun long ago by the city's founding fathers. Mrs. Stout outlined the history of the club's Trees for Jacksonville project, telling of the 1965 agreement entered into with the Journal Courier and the City Street Department. The spring campaign is now in progress with the Pilot club matching funds donated by concerned citizens.

Mrs. Cloyd, who was chairman of the Springfield Pilot committee which organized the club in Jacksonville, discussed Pilot in general emphasizing the fact that funds raised from Pilot projects in the community are spent in the community. She closed by saying that never has there been a time when the world has been in greater need of a service club like Pilot.

The program was brought to a close by Mrs. Scott, who gave the Pilot code of ethics.

Sewage Project Delays Blamed On Congress

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The State Environmental Protection Agency said Friday it has held an Illinois commission that part of the blame for delay in funding local sewage treatment projects falls on Congress' doorstep.

The office of William L. Blaser, agency director, said he reported Thursday to the Illinois Water Pollution and Waste Resources Commission.

Blaser said congressional slowness in appropriating funds for the 55 per cent federal share has been the major delay factor.

The state contributes 25 per cent. Illinois has sold $200 million in bonds to finance its portion, but has made state grants totalling only $16.6 million. However, the state has obligated a total of $60 million for grants.

Blaser has also blamed ineptly prepared local applications for some of the tardiness in action on grants. Seminars are being held to advise local officials on how to prepare an application.

(Jacksonville officials are awaiting action on a grant application of about $350,000 to bring the local sewage treatment plant up to state standards.)

Daley Still Power In State Delegation

By H. JOSEF HEBERT

Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Despite reforms in the selection of delegates to the Democratic party's national convention, the Illinois delegation has not changed significantly from past contingents under the tight reins of Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago.

For the first time in Illinois history, voters on March 21 directly selected 160 delegates to the nominating convention with each candidate having to state a preference for president or show noncommitment.

The move was part of an effort by the Democratic party to become more representative after the fiery 1968 convention in Chicago. In past years all but 48 delegates had been selected by party leaders.

The direct vote was expected to give more young people a chance to participate, but only a few delegates under 25 were elected and none was picked among the dozens of candidates under 22. Most of the delegation is over 40 and sprinkled generously both in Chicago and downstate by party regulars from Daley to state legislators to numerous county committeemen. There are 25 delegates who were members of the 1968 delegation.

The reform movement also was to have given women a more equitable place in the electoral process, but of the 160 delegates the unofficial count shows only 18 women. The 1968 delegation included only a dozen women, but one female delegate says considering that 127 women voted for a delegate spot this year "We've made a terrible showing."

Direct elections also were thought to give better representation to blacks, who composed 13.6 per cent of the state's population and usually vote Democratic.

Downstate, the delegation includes only two blacks, one from East St. Louis and the other from North Chicago. A few more Negro delegates can be found in Chicago including State Sen. Cecil Partee, U.S. Rep. Ralph Metcalfe and Alderman Claude Holman, all close Daley allies.

Sen. George S. McGovern, who won 14 delegates, predominantly in areas with high concentrations of young voters, has said that he will challenge some of the 59 delegates elected for Sen. Edmund S. Muskie because the states did not conform to the party reform guidelines of equal representation.

McGovern aides particularly singled out two districts—the 22nd in central Illinois and the 20th which stretches from Springfield toward the St. Louis area—which have all male candidates. In those districts, Muskie won 12 of 14 delegates.

In Chicago members of the Independent Voters of Illinois and other groups say they will seek to challenge the validity of some of the uncommitted Daley delegates.

In its effort to give greater representation the national party has, in fact, challenged Daley's iron tight control of past Illinois Delegations. How much control the mayor has given up is yet to be seen, but it is apparent that he maintains sufficient control over much of the delegation.

Daley has under his reins more than 65 uncommitted delegates in Cook County including such figures as U.S. Rep. Daniel Rostenkowski; Alderman Thomas Keane; county assessor P.J. Cullerton, and Sheriff Richard Elrod.

Then there is the mayor himself—and his son. They represent the 5th and 3rd districts respectively.

Furthermore, political observers cannot discount an informal alliance between Daley and some Muskie delegates as well as possibly a few uncommitted delegates downstate.

Muskie aides during the campaign said that with a strong showing—they won 59 delegates—they might attract Daley support at the convention. In the same respect, Daley is not discounting some Muskie delegates supporting his aims, particularly since a delegate is not required by law to stick to his position.

The 160 delegates will select 10 additional delegates and vote on a chairman before going to Miami and Daley is expected to have a big say as to who the new members are and who will be the chairman. It would be no surprise if it were Daley himself.

Although the Daley power remains, there are a significant number of liberals—including young delegates—scattered downstate attempting to make inroads into the party organization.

"This voting is a brand new idea and its going to take a time," says Marget Hamilton, a McGovern delegate from the 14th District and former mayor of Wheaton.

"They (the party regulars) are going to do just as they've always done," she adds, "That is until somebody tromps on them...and I think it's high time that someone does."

THREE ACCIDENTS FRIDAY AFTERNOON

City policemen investigated three minor traffic accidents Friday afternoon and ticketed one driver.

About 2:30 p.m., a car driven by Denby A. Ranson, 72, of R.R. 2 Jacksonville, struck a Jacksonville-Springfield Transportation Co. truck parked for unloading on the square.

Sally Welch, 27, of R.R. 2 Jacksonville, was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way about 3:30 p.m. after a collision at the intersection of East State and North East streets. Officers said the northbound Welch auto was hit by a westbound car driven by Linda C. Hepworth, 21, of 1619 S. Clay Ave.

About 4:15 p.m., cars driven by Tim L. Hacker, 16, of 407 N. Laurel Dr., backed into an auto operated by Marjorie N. Parson, 50, of R.R. 1 Jacksonville. Officers said Hacker was driving out of the Lincoln Square Shopping Center parking lot when he stopped for a car on Morton and backed into the Parsons auto.
